Conditions of Sale.

1. All bids to be per Lot as numbered in the Catalogue.
2. The highest bidder to be the buyer; in all cases of disputed bids the lot shall be resold, but the Auctioneer will use his judgment as to the good faith of all claims and his decision shall be final.
3. Buyers to give their names and addresses and to make such cash payments on accounts as may be required, in default of which the lots purchased to be immediately resold.
4. Goods bought to be removed at the close of each sale. If not so removed they will be at the sole risk of the purchaser, and subject to storage charges, and this Company will not be responsible if such goods are lost, stolen, damaged or destroyed.
5. Terms Cash. If accounts are not paid at the conclusion of each Sale, or, in the case of absent buyers, when bills are rendered, this Company reserves the right to recatalogue the goods for immediate sale without notice to the defaulting buyer, and all costs of such resale will be charged to the defaulter. This condition is without prejudice to the rights of the Company to enforce the sale contract and collect the amount due without such resale at its own option. Unsettled accounts are subject to interest at the rate of six per cent. per annum.
6. All books are sold as catalogued, and are assumed to be in good second-hand condition. If material defects are found, not mentioned in the catalogue, the lot may be returned. Notice of such defects must be given promptly and the goods returned within ten days from the date of the sale. No exceptions will be made to this rule. Magazines and other periodicals and all miscellaneous books arranged in parcels are sold as they are without recourse.
7. Autograph Letters, Documents, Manuscripts and Bindings are sold as they are without recourse. The utmost care is taken to authenticate and correctly describe items of this character, but this Company will not be responsible for errors, omissions, or defects of any kind.
8. Bids. We make no charge for executing orders for our customers and use all bids competitively, buying at the lowest price permitted by other bids.

Major William Harrison Lambert

Soldier—Citizen—Collector

MAJOR WILLIAM H. LAMBERT, a distinguished veteran of the Civil War, a prominent business man, and well known in public and social life and as an historical writer, lecturer, and collector, died at his home in Philadelphia on June 1, 1912. He was born at Reading, Pa., May 9, 1842, and when a boy was taken by his parents to Philadelphia, which continued to be his home for nearly seventy years. He began the study of law, but abandoned it to serve his country, and on August 22, 1862, enlisted as a private in the Fifteenth Pennsylvania Cavalry, serving in Maryland and Virginia during Lee's invasion and participating in the battle of Antietam. He was mustered out of the Fifteenth, November 24, 1862, for promotion and became First Lieutenant and Adjutant of the Twenty-seventh New Jersey Infantry three days later. He held the same rank in the Thirty-third New Jersey Infantry from July 25, 1863. His command was in the Army of the Potomac, and he served with gallantry in many sharp engagements around Chattanooga and was in the march to the relief of Burnside, fiercely assailed at Knoxville. On January 16, 1864, he was made Captain and was appointed on the staff of General Geary. He was with Sherman on the March to the Sea and was one of that veteran army which passed before the President in the Grand Review. On March 13, 1865, Captain Lambert was breveted Major in the United States Volunteers for gallant and meritorious conduct during the War, was honorably mustered out of the service July 17, 1865, and later under resolution of Congress the Medal of Honor was awarded to him.

In 1866 he entered the employment of the Mutual Life Insurance Company and continued with it until his death, becoming a partner in the Philadelphia agency in 1872, General Agent in 1887, Manager in 1901, and one of the Trustees of the Company in 1907. His business career was highly honorable and unusually successful.

From its organization, Major Lambert was deeply interested in the Grand Army of the Republic. On January 14, 1880, he was elected to the Commandery of the Loyal Legion of the State of Pennsylvania, and was a representative from the Commandery to the Fifth, Sixth, Eighth, Ninth, Tenth, and Eleventh Quadrennial Congresses of the Order. He was elected Junior Vice-Commander on March 4, 1887, and Commander on May 3, 1911.

Major Lambert was not an office-seeker but was honored repeatedly by appointments to positions of trust in the government of Philadelphia. He was made a member of the Department of Charities and Correction and for seven years ending April 3, 1899, served as its president. In that year he was appointed to the Board of City Trusts which manages a property of enormous value, largely the result of bequests by Stephen Girard, but embracing forty-five separate trusts, and served in that position till his death. He was one of the trustees of the Free Library of Philadelphia and treasurer of the Mercantile Library. He was a member of Post 2 of the Grand Army of the Republic, and of the Union League, the Art Club, the Penn Club, the United Service Club, and various other social and patriotic organizations. He was a member of the Titmarsh Club of London, the other American members at that time being Mr. Frederic S. Dickson, Sir Gilbert Parker, the Hon. Whitelaw Reid, and General James Grant Wilson. Major Lambert was a member of the Council of the Historical Society of Pennsylvania, throughout his life was deeply interested in the history of his state and country, was widely known as a lecturer on Civil War topics, and made several valuable contributions to the history of that period. He was the author of "Lincoln Literature," "The Faith of Abraham Lincoln," and valuable addresses on Generals Sherman, Meade, Hancock, and Thomas, whom he particularly admired. In a recent address the Rev. Charles H. Richards said: "I had not been long acquainted with Major Lambert when I found that he had three heroes whose names and words and works he cherished above all others. He surrounded himself with mementoes of these men and lived in the atmosphere of their lives. They were Gen. George H. Thomas, William M. Thackeray, and Abraham Lincoln—the great soldier, the great writer, the great statesman. He revered the memory of the great Commander under whom he had served in the great struggle of the Civil War for the preservation of the Union. He had a deep admiration for the great literary Master whose books struck powerful blows at shams and snobs, and he captured for his own possession some of his MSS. He had a passionate reverence and devotion to the memory of that greatest of American Statesmen and Presidents, whose clear insight, moral courage, and masterly ability made him the Savior of the Republic in the time of its greatest peril—Abraham Lincoln—concerning whom he gathered a matchless collection of Memorabilia."

On October 15, 1874, Major Lambert married Miss Herminia Van Haagen, who with one son and three married daughters, survived him. The death of one of the daughters, Mrs. H. Louis Duhring, Jr., recently occurred.

After the death of Major Lambert memorial services were held in the Second Presbyterian Church, Germantown, Philadelphia. Addresses were delivered by clergymen, statesmen, and soldiers. The Rev. John Harvey Lee's short address seemed to summarize the others. He said: "The finest product of God in this world is the Christian man. He whose memory we would keep green and whom we are delighted to honor today was the highest type of a Christian man. He was a Christian soldier, devoting himself, in the furtherance of his patriotism, to the service of his country. He was a Christian philanthropist, giving without stint to the uplift of humanity. He was a Christian business man, exhibiting the finest abilities, and the highest principles of integrity and honor. He was an ardent churchman, devoting all his heart and soul to the church of Jesus Christ. He was in every sense of the term a cultured, Christian gentleman."

The Lincoln Fellowship was formed in the autumn of 1907 at a meeting of two score admirers of Abraham Lincoln, held at the Fifth Avenue Hotel, New York. The membership consisted mainly of collectors of Lincolniana and naturally Major William H. Lambert was elected president. He presided at the annual dinners, and on one of these occasions the members presented to him the medal designed by Roiné to commemorate the hundredth anniversary of Lincoln's birth. After the death of their president the members of the Fellowship published various addresses on the life and public services of Major Lambert, and several tributes to his memory, from which these extracts are made:

"For almost half a century Major Lambert had been a collector of Lincolniana, having first been inspired to take up the pleasant pursuit by receiving a gift from his father of a copy of Dr. J. G. Holland's 'Life of Lincoln.' . . . Major Lambert presented the most unselfish attitude of any collector that I have ever known. His incomparable Lincoln and Thackeray treasures were always at the service of others, as well as his unusual knowledge of the writings and familiarity with the career of the American statesman and the English author."—General James Grant Wilson, author of "Thackeray in the United States," a work dedicated to Major Lambert "to whose unrivalled collection of Thackeryana the author is chiefly indebted for the illustrations contained in this work." Of some six score portraits and other illustrations, "almost half the number," says General Wilson, "were kindly contributed by Major Lambert from his unequalled collection."

"Major Lambert was a loyal and untiring servant of the Republic in more ways than one, but he builded better than he knew when he undertook to assemble and preserve the historical data bearing upon the life of Abraham Lincoln. This was, I venture to say, his greatest public service.”—Frederick Trevor Hill.

“Major Lambert was a born collector. On one occasion he told me that he first started to collect books about the Holy Land, and after exhausting that line of endeavor, he bought Boyd’s collection on Lincoln. Boyd’s collection was one of the earliest formed and this will explain how Major Lambert had so many items that other collectors could not find. He got them early. . . . There is, I think, no question but that his collection of Lincoln books and pamphlets surpasses any other collection, not only in its completeness but in the number of rare items. In autograph letters Major Lambert’s collection is without a rival.”—Judd Stewart.

“Soon after beginning to gather up the books and pamphlets pertaining to Abraham Lincoln I learned that Major Lambert owned a superb collection of them. Naturally I applied to him for advice and assistance. A long correspondence followed and innumerable kindnesses, all so unstintedly and graciously given that gratitude speedily ripened into affection. We had few opportunities for meeting; but once, for a whole precious day, a day of more than twenty-four hours. I was a guest in his home, with that unrivalled store of Lincoln memorabilia spread around us in delightful profusion. That visit, with two or three brief interviews elsewhere, are cherished memories, and big bundles of his explicit and helpful letters are as rifts in the cloud that has gathered between us. It is a joy to tell of his goodness to one in the far outer circle of his friendships. Once he sent me a packet of Lincoln pamphlets, duplicates from his great collection. Among them was one of a rare edition which I had despaired of ever possessing. I knew that it had sold in the book mart for a monstrous price. Fearing that he had overlooked its money value I offered to restore it. The copy was slightly defective. He begged that I would return that copy—sending a perfect one in exchange. It is worth while being a collector, just to know how to appreciate so beautiful a courtesy. The dear Major had more than one hobby, but only one character, that of a Christian gentleman.”—Daniel Fish.

“Major Lambert was an ardent admirer of Lincoln, whom he had known personally, and became an eager collector of letters and other material associated with the great Emancipator. No man in the country obtained a closer view of the life, deeds, and thoughts of the War President. Major Lambert also specialized as a collector of Thackerayana, and this gave him a reputation on two continents, as he possessed a collection of Thackeray manuscripts and other material admitted to be unsurpassed, gathered after much travel and infinite search. His Lincoln collection was virtually complete, for it is believed to contain every life of the Emancipator published, and in addition contains an extensive collection of portraits of the Civil War President.”—Philadelphia “Ledger.”

“Major Lambert began to collect material relating to Abraham Lincoln immediately after the Civil War, and it is generally conceded, by all who really know, that his Lincoln collection was the greatest in this country. Besides autograph letters and manuscripts he owned all the lives of Lincoln, all the funeral sermons printed and accessible, many personal relics, such as Lincoln’s writing desk used in his law office in Springfield, all the known engravings and photographs, and many other items. Of Thackeray it is well within the bounds of accuracy to state that Major Lambert’s was the finest collection extant, even including that of Lady Richmond Ritchie, Thackeray’s daughter. It is sometimes the part of wisdom to be a prophet rather than a follower, and Major Lambert had the far-seeing wisdom to begin his Thackeray collection when quite a young man. Although at no time a rich man, he once told the editor that he had bought steadily for thirty-five years, and finally got to where he felt that the prices were so high that even he could not acquire everything he wanted. Of first editions he had a complete set; in original drawings, books from Thackeray’s library, letters, manuscripts, etc., the collection was very rich. Apropos of the above paragraph it will be remembered that Augustine Daly owned the original letters written by Thackeray to Mrs. Brookfield, which were begun and published in the initial number of ‘Scribner’s Magazine.’ At the Daly sale in 1900, these fetched the handsome sum of $16,200 and are safely placed in the library of Mr. J. P. Morgan. This Brookfield correspondence was edited by James Russell Lowell while Minister to the Court of St. James’s. Some of the letters were of so intimate and private a character that Mr. Lowell did not think it advisable to publish them. The rejected letters were in the Thackeray collection of Major Lambert, and he used to point with satisfaction and pride to the fact that while Mr. Morgan owned the letters the public had read, he possessed the letters the public had never seen.”—From the “Book-Lover’s Quarterly,” December, 1912.

After these encomiums and the universal opinion of collectors generally throughout the world that the Lincoln and Thackeray collections owned by Major Lambert were the finest in existence, nothing remains for us to say except that as he enjoyed these treasures not only for what they meant to him but because of the knowledge they imparted to students of history and literature and the pleasure they gave to his intimate friends, he looked forward also to the dispersal of them, that his brother collectors might have the joy of acquisition that had once been his.

BRONZES.

Including two Life Masks, Casts of the Hands, Statuettes, and Bas-Reliefs.

121. BRONZE Cast of the Life Mask made by Volk in 1860. Signed on the lower edge "L. W. Volk, fecit, 1860." Smoothly shaven face showing part of the neck and a small portion of hair on the forehead.

* This mask is very well known. The correspondence between Volk and Major Lambert is contained in one of the following lots.

(See Illustration.)

122. BRONZE CAST of Lincoln's right hand, closed and holding a section of broom-handle, cut for the purpose. With inscription "A Lincoln. L. W. Volk, fecit, 1860." Life size.

123. BRONZE CAST of Lincoln's left hand, closed. With inscription on the end: "A. Lincoln. L. W. Volk, fecit, 1860." Life size.

124. BRONZE BUST of Lincoln; without beard. About life size, mounted on a base of green marble. A plate on the back contains the following: "Modelled from life by Leonard W. Volk, Chicago, 1860." Replica.

* This is perhaps the most satisfactory portraiture we have of Lincoln in his prime, without a beard, and showing his strong and well-modelled chin.

125. — VOLK (LEONARD W.). 4 A. L. S., from Mr. Volk to Major Lambert, in regard to a replica of the Lincoln life mask and casts of the hands; A. L. S., from Douglas Volk and the Century Co.; Article by Volk from "Century Magazine, etc." Bound in 1 vol. Svo, half morocco, gilt top.

126. BRONZE CAST of the Life Mask made by Clark Mills in 1865. Not signed, but with inscription on the top "Abraham Lincoln, 1865."

* This mask with the beard, made shortly before Lincoln's death, and the earlier one by Volk with smoothly shaven face, offer an interesting contrast.

127. BRONZE BUST of Abraham Lincoln; with a beard, broad low collar and evening clothes. Signed on the back, Geo. E. Bissell, Sculptor, 1893. Cast in bronze by E. Gruet, Jeune, Avenue de Chatillon, Paris. Height 16½ inches.

128. BRONZE BUST of Lincoln; with beard, life size or a trifle larger. George E. Bissell, Sculptor. Cast by The Gorham Co. and copyrighted, 1904. About 31 inches in height.

131. BRONZE BUST OF LINCOLN, with beard, broad low collar, and evening dress, with a palm branch beneath and "President Lincoln." Signed on the sides: "Cra-raud," and finished with a silver patina. About 8 inches in height.

132. BRONZE BUST of Lincoln, with beard and very long hair. Signed on back: "Chardigny, 1861." About 5 inches in height.

133. BRONZE BUST of Lincoln, on a brown marble pedestal. Portrait with beard, flowing tie and evening dress. Signed by the sculptor, H. Müller. Height of bronze $5\frac{1}{2}$ inches, total height 8 inches.

134. BRONZE BUST of Lincoln; of very good quality, but not dated or signed. About 11 inches in height.

135. BRONZE BUST of Lincoln with untrimmed beard and cloak. Of good quality, but unsigned. Height about 5 inches.

136. BRONZE BUST of Lincoln; on a marble pedestal. Total height about 6 inches. Not signed, but marked at the back: "Copyright 1897, A. C. McClurg & Co."

137. BRONZE STATUE of Lincoln, with beard, evening dress and cloak, holding the Emancipation Proclamation in one hand and pen in the other. Not signed or dated: about 20 inches in height.

138. BRONZE PLAQUE with a bas-relief portrait of Lincoln, waist length, right profile, bearded. Inscription beneath—"Abraham Lincoln * * 1809 * 1865 * *" Copyright 1907 by V. D. Brenner, sculptor. About 7 by 9 inches, mounted on mottled green marble.

139. COPPER PLAQUE, bearing a relief portrait of Lincoln, right profile, with beard. Circular in form, with inscription around the margin—"Abraham Lincoln Feb. 12, 1809. April 14, 1865." C. Calverley, Sculptor, 1898. Copyright. About 10 inches in diameter.

140. BRONZE PLAQUE. Relief Portrait in bronze, by V. D. Brenner. Half length profile to right, "Abraham Lincoln. 1809-1865." Dimensions $3\frac{1}{2} \times 2\frac{5}{8}$ inches. Framed.

141. — The same, SILVER.

142. — Another, BRONZE, reduced in size. Dimensions $2\frac{1}{2} \times 1\frac{3}{4}$ inches.

143. BRONZE PLAQUE with a portrait bust of Lincoln in relief; right profile, with a beard. Inscription beneath: "The Republican Club of the City of New York February 12th 1910." Signed on back "T. Resal." Oval in shape, about 4 by 5 inches.

144. COPPER PLAQUE with a relief portrait of Lincoln, right profile with beard, surrounded with figures, emblems and the inscription—"élu deux fois président des états-unis assassiné à Washington le 14 Avril 1865. Dédié aux Membres des loges maçonniques. Signed—"Auzkas." About $8\frac{1}{2}$ inches in diameter.

145. BRONZE PLAQUE with Bust Portrait of Lincoln in relief, right profile, with beard. Above are the dates 1809-1865, and beneath "A. Lincoln" and a sprig of laurel. Unsigned, and undated. Size 2 by $2\frac{3}{4}$ inches, in a black frame.

146. BRONZE PLAQUE with a relief portrait bust of Lincoln. Of good quality, but not signed or dated. About 3 by 4 inches.

147. MEMORIAL BRONZE containing the text of Lincoln's Speech at the dedication of the National Cemetery, Gettysburg, November 19, 1863; within a floral border. Size about 12 by 18 inches; on bronze, finished with a green patina. In a brown wood frame.

266. EARLY (GEN. JUBAL ANDERSON, Confederate). A. L. S., 8 pp. 4to. Drummondville, Province of Ontario, Canada. Dec. 11, 1867. To T. C. Reynolds.

* A long and exceedingly interesting letter, describing in strong and bitter terms his grievances against the United States government. In some instances it is evident that his pent-up feelings prevailed against his better judgment and he sets forth some of the absurd and unfounded charges against Lincoln, which were prevalent at the time. "Have you seen the expose of Mrs. Lincoln in regard to her wardrobe, and do you think the wife of a President of the United States could have received $30,000 worth of shawls, laces, fine dresses, etc. for her services in promising contracts and appointments for the donors, without his knowledge or connivance? Just think what would have been the fate of that man who would have approached the wife of George Washington or James Madison with the offer of such presents. Have you also seen the statement of Lincoln's Adm'r showing that his estate amounted to over $100,000 after paying all debts, when it is known that he was a man of very moderate means when he was made President of the U. S.? It is a very great mistake to take his buffoonery for goodness of heart. As to the flags, I really think the Confederate flag was a very beautiful one in itself, but it is generally the ideas which one associated with a flag which endears it to its upholders, and the Confederate flag is associated with the most gallant struggle ever made by a people, and is sanctified by some of the best blood ever poured out on the field of battle. As to the U. S. flag, it was ever the emblem of freedom, and therefore was revered by us, but what beauty is there in a mere piece of striped bunting, and certainly the brutal intrigues and the acts of tyranny usurpation committed during our four years of war, and which are continued to be committed by its present up-holders, are sufficient to blot out all its former glories," etc.

278. EMANCIPATION PROCLAMATION. Signed by Abraham Lincoln and William H. Seward, whose signatures are attested by John G. Nicolay, secretary to the President. Printed on parchment paper, 17½ x 22 inches. Wash. 1863

* One of 50 authorized copies of the original proclamation, signed by the President and Secretary of State, and John G. Nicolay. Hart's Bibliography gives the following notice: "At the time of the Philadelphia Sanitary Fair, in June, 1864, twenty copies of this proclamation were beautifully printed on parchment paper, and signed, at the request of two gentlemen prominently connected with the movement, by the President and Mr. Seward, which signatures were afterwards attested as genuine by Mr. Lincoln's private secretary, Colonel John G. Nicolay." The two gentlemen here mentioned were Charles Godfrey Leland and George Boker. Mr. Leland in his "Memoirs," writes: "Because I had so earnestly advocated Emancipation as a war measure at a time when even the most fiery and advanced Abolition papers, such as the Tribune, were holding back and shouting pas trop de zèle—and as it proved wisely, by advocating it publicly—merely as a war measure—the President, at the request of George H. Boker, actually signed for me fifty duplicate very handsome copies of the Proclamation on parchment paper, to every one of which Mr. Seward also added his signature. One of these is now hanging up in the British Museum as my gift. . . . The copies I presented to the Sanitary Fair to be sold for its benefit, but there was not much demand for them; what were left over I divided with George Boker." Vol. II. pp. 206.

THIRTEENTH CONSTITUTIONAL AMENDMENT SIGNED BY LINCOLN, COLFAX, AND HAMLIN.

279. EMANCIPATION. Article XIII. Section 1. Neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, except as a punishment for crime whereof the party shall have been duly convicted, shall exist within the United States, or any place subject to their jurisdiction. Section 2. Congress shall have power to enforce this article by appropriate legislation. Signed: "Schuyler Colfax," Speaker of the House of Representatives. "H. Hamlin," Vice-President of the United States and President of the Senate. I certify that this Resolution originated in the Senate, "J. W. Forney," Secretary. To the above signatures the president added; "Approved February 1, 1865. Abraham Lincoln." Written on vellum, 14¾ x 19½ inches, folio, half green morocco, gilt top.

* One of three duplicate copies of the original amendment, which were made by the chief engrossing clerk and his two assistants by special permission, and at their request signed by President Lincoln, etc. Inserted are four A. L. S. from the daughters of Isaac Strohm, chief engrossing clerk, to Mr. Lambert, giving the history of the above document and vouching for its genuineness. The approval and signature of Lincoln are unusually large and very carefully written.

(See Illustration.)

297. FISH (DANIEL). Lincoln Bibliography. Books and Pamphlets relating to Abraham Lincoln. [Pages 143 to 380 of the last volume of Lincoln's Works.] No title-page, but the complete Bibliography as published in the later editions. 8vo, sheets, uncut. n. p.—n. d.

298. FLEMINGTON, N. J. Discourses Memorial of Abraham Lincoln, delivered by Pastors of the different Churches. 12mo, half morocco. Lambertville, N. J. 1865

* Three Autograph Letters by the Pastors inserted.

299. FORD'S THEATRE PLAY-BILLS. The original play-bills issued at the Theatre the morning and evening of the day on which Lincoln was assassinated; variations and facsimiles; data concerning them; an A. L. S. by O. H. Oldroyd; together with some earlier bills of interest. 35 items, mounted on thick cartridge-paper, and bound in a narrow folio volume, half morocco, gilt.

* The scarcest of the bills contained in this volume is the one printed in the afternoon, after it had been definitely ascertained that Lincoln would attend the performance. This is distinguished by having inserted a patriotic verse of eight lines, and by the omission of the list of prices of seats. It is extremely rare, and probably is the kind used by Lincoln. The regular bill for the performance, printed in the morning, accompanies it.

In addition to these two there is another variety with the imprint of Polkinhorn, in which the word "chairs" is omitted after "orchestra" in the list of prices of admission, and reading "Sensational Drama," instead of "Sensation Drama," as in the others. This bill and the other issue without the verse have been declared on authority to have been found in the box after Lincoln was carried out, but it is natural to suppose that the variety with the verse especially printed in his honor would have been handed to the President and his party.

The other bills in the volume include facsimiles by other printers; the issues of the Polkinhorn bill announcing the attendance of the President; bills for previous performances in the same week; issues from Oct. 19 to 26th, when Junius Brutus Booth appeared in the cast; two bills with Mrs. D. P. Bowers' name; and others.

The whole forms a remarkably interesting collection, embracing every variety of the "Lincoln bill," including originals and forgeries.

361. HERNDON (WILLIAM H.). A Series of Autograph Letters relating to Lincoln, between W. H. Herndon and Charles H. Hart, and from Herndon to Mr. Whiting. Mounted to 4to and bound in half green morocco, gilt top. 1866-1887

* The series comprises: A. L. S. from Jesse W. Weik, transmitting these letters; 33 letters from Mr. Herndon to Mr. Hart; 10 A. L. S. from Mr. Hart to Mr. Herndon; 6 A. L. S. from Mr. Herndon to Mr. Whiting; A. L. S. from Mr. Herndon to Mr. Boyd; and two copies of letters from Mr. Herndon to Mr. Hart.

All of these letters relate to Abraham Lincoln, those from Mr. Hart referring to his Bibliography of Lincolniana or replying to the observations of Mr. Herndon. Among the letters from Mr. Herndon are three of great importance, while all are interesting, giving many details and incidents in Lincoln's life. In a letter dated Nov. 26, 1866, enclosing a copy of a letter to Mr. I. N. Arnold, Mr. Herndon writes of the domestic life of Lincoln and his wife, "Mrs. Lincoln's domestic quarrels, in my opinion, sprang from a woman's revenge which she was not strong enough to resist. Poor woman! The World has no charity for her, and yet justice must be done her—being careful not to injure her husband. All that I know ennoble both, and their difficulties sprang from human nature." In the enclosure he gives an account of the period of insanity in Lincoln's life. A letter dated Dec. 12, 1866, reads: "Mrs. Lincoln will scold me—poor woman, without knowing that I am her friend, determined to put her right before the world for all time." In a letter dated Dec. 28, written under a promise of secrecy, Mr. Herndon gives complete details of the various misfortunes of the ancestors of Lincoln, far more complete, in fact, than those related in the biography published in 1889 by Mr. Herndon, which he was forced to suppress on account of his revelations concerning the domestic troubles and ancestry of Lincoln. Letters to Mr. Whiting speak of Judge Davis and Mr. Lincoln.

* FINE COPY OF THE SCARCE FIRST EDITION with the suppressed passages. Laid in is a 1 p. 4to, L. S. from Robert Lincoln, who, referring to Mr. Herndon, writes, "I became convinced that he was actuated by an intense malice, and was possessed of a most ingenious imagination. The malice arose, I am quite sure, from the fact that my father could not see his way, in view of Herndon's personal character, to give him some lucrative employment during the War of the Rebellion."

* The Life of Lincoln in Greek. With L. S. of presentation to Mr. Lambert from Judd Stewart.

"For a long time the only known copy of the Greek 'Life of Lincoln,' Athens, 1865, was that in Yale University Library. Through our Consul at Athens—and by reason of a liberal price—I obtained two copies; one of these I sent to Major Lambert and he rather objected to my giving him so expensive an item, but he soon got even by sending me a copy of the 'Praesidicide,' which had been through the fire and had the back burned off. Every leaf had been mounted on linen and nicely bound, and the inscription 'A souvenir of the fire of 1906' makes it doubly precious"—Judd Stewart in his paper on "Major Lambert as a Lincoln Collector" in No. 4 of the Publications of the Lincoln Fellowship of New York, 1912.

AUTOGRAPH LETTERS.

Documents, Legal Papers and other Autographic Material, either in the handwriting of Lincoln or Signed by him.

429. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM, Ancestor of the President). D. S., one page, folio, Berks County, Penn. May 11, 1774.

* Assessment on the property of Abel Thomas, signed by Abraham Lincoln and Samuel High, commissioners of Assessment for Berks County. The Lincoln genealogy as traced through their land transfers shows that the signer of the above document was the great grand-uncle of the President. He was a well educated man for the period, a land owner of Berks County, held several county offices, and was a member of the General Assembly of Pennsylvania and of the state Constitutional Convention of 1790.

LEAF FROM LINCOLN'S SUM-BOOK.

430. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). An Autograph Page from the Sum-Book of Abraham Lincoln. Folio, mounted between transparent celluloid sheets, with a printed title and other material relating to the sum-book, large 4to, half green morocco, gilt top.

* One side of the leaf is entitled "Multiplication 1824" and contains seven sums; the other side has the heading "Multiplication Continued," with five sums; in one corner at the bottom is written "Abraham Lincoln's Book." A pencil annotation on one side reads "Received from Wm. H. Herndon." The leaf is worn and somewhat torn. Lincoln's stepmother said: "Abe could not afford to buy an arithmetic, but had to write his tables of multiplication and addition in a copy-book." A few of these pages were given to Mr. Herndon by Lincoln's stepmother, and he, in turn, presented the above to Mr. Hart, author of a Lincoln Bibliography. Laid in is a 2 pp. 4to A. L. S. from Prof. Snook of Philadelphia, explaining the rule of "Nines" which Lincoln used to prove his work.

431. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). D. S., 1 p. 12mo, Sept. 26, 1832, Discharge papers issued to David M. Paniter, a volunteer private "in the company of Mounted Volunteers under the command of Capt. Abraham Lincoln, in the regiment commanded by Col. Samuel M. Thompson in the Brigade under the command of Generals S. Whiteside and H. Atkinson, called into the service of the United States by the Commander-in-Chief of the militia of the State, for the protection of the North Western Frontier against an Invasion of the British Band of Sac and other tribes of Indians. He was enrolled on the 21st day of April, 1832, and was HONORABLY DISCHARGED on the 7th day of June thereafter, having served 48 days."

* Lincoln volunteered for the campaign against the Indians in the State Militia, in 1832, and was elected Captain of his company. In June of the same year this company was discharged, and he again volunteered.

LINCOLN'S AUTOGRAPH PRAECIPE IN HIS FIRST LAW CASE.

432. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Autograph Praecipec issued by Lincoln for Writ in his First Case. "David Woolridge vs. Hawthorne. Trespass vi et armis. Damages $500.00. The Clerk of the Sangamon Circuit Court will issue a summons returnable to me next Term of the Sangamon Circuit Court. Oct. 8, 1836. A. Lincoln." 12mo, mounted to 8vo, and bound in half green morocco, gilt top.

* Lincoln was admitted to the bar in the autumn of 1836, but the exact date is unknown. Hawthorne vs. Woolridge was his first case and was dismissed at the cost of the plaintiff, for whom Mr. Lincoln's name was entered. This relic was presented to C. H. Hart by William H. Herndon, Lincoln's law partner, and has a note to this effect in Mr. Hart's autograph in pencil on the back of the praecipec. A printed page of information is inserted, together with a catalogue description.

433. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Document in the Autograph of Lincoln, signed by Mary and Richard Anderson. 1 page, 4to, May 26, 1837. (Torn at folds.)

* "Stephen T. Logan, John T. Stuart and A. Lincoln have engaged to prosecute the said suit as attorneys for the said heirs, we, the subscribers, being the widow and one of the sons of the said Anderson deceased, agree to give to the said Logan Stuart and Lincoln one half of the said piece of ground for their services, provided they recover the ground; but are not bound to pay anything unless the said piece of ground be recovered. . . ."

434. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 5 pages, 4to (slightly torn at folds), Springfield, April 1, 1838, to Mrs. O. H. Browning. With 2 A. L. S. relating to the Lincoln letter. 3 pieces.

* Lincoln met Mary S. Owens, afterwards Mary S. Vineyard, in October, 1833 at the house of Mrs. Bennet Able, her sister, and was attracted by her intellectual attainments and personal beauty. This letter gives a sketch of Lincoln's association with her. "It was, then, in the autumn of 1836 that a married lady of my acquaintance [Mrs. Able], and who was a great friend of mine, being about to pay a visit to her father and other relatives residing in Kentucky, proposed to me that on her return she would bring a sister of hers with her on condition that I would engage to become her brother-in-law with all convenient despatch. I, of course, accepted the proposal, for you know I could not have done otherwise had I really been averse to it; but privately between you and me, I was most confoundedly well pleased with the project. . . . Time passed on, the lady took her journey and in due time returned, sister in company, sure enough. This astonished me a little, for it appeared to me that her coming so readily showed that she was a trifle too willing, but on reflection it occurred to me that she might have been prevailed on by her married sister to come, without anything concerning me having been mentioned to her, and so I concluded that if no other objection presented itself, I would consent to waive this. . . . In a few days we had an interview, and, although I had seen her before, she did not look as my imagination had pictured her. I knew she was over-size, but now she appeared a fair match for Falstaff. I knew she was called on 'old maid', and I felt no doubt of the truth of at least half of the appellation, but now, when I beheld her, I could not for my life avoid thinking of my mother; and this, not from withered features,—for her skin was too full of fat to permit of its contracting into wrinkles,—but from her want of teeth, weather-beaten appearance in general, and from a kind of notion that ran in my head that nothing could have commenced at the size of infancy and reached her present bulk in less than thirty-five or forty years; and, in short, I was not at all pleased with her. But what could I do? . . . At once I determined to consider her my wife, and this done, all my powers of discovery were put to work in search of perfections in her which might be fairly set off against her defects. I tried to imagine her handsome, which, but for her unfortunate corpulency, was actually true. . . . After all my sufferings upon this deeply interesting subject, here I am, wholly, unexpectedly, completely out of the 'serape', and I now want to know if you can guess how I got out of it—out, clear, in every sense of the term—no violation of word, honor, or conscience . . . As the lawyer says, it was done in the manner following, to-wit: After I had delayed the matter as long as I thought I could in honor do . . . I concluded I might as well bring it to a consummation without further delay, and so I mustered my resolution and made the proposal to her direct; but, shocking to relate, she answered, No. . . . At first I supposed she did it through an affectation of modesty, which I thought but ill became her under the peculiar circumstances of her case, but on my renewal of the charge I found she repelled it with greater firmness than before. . . . I finally was forced to give it up, at which I very unexpectedly found myself mortified almost beyond endurance. . . . And, to cap the whole, I then for the first time I began to suspect that I was really a little in love with her. But let it go! I'll try and outlive it. Others have been made fools of by the girls, but this can never with truth be said of me. I most emphatically, in this instance, made a fool of myself. I have now come to the conclusion never again to think of marrying, and for this reason—I can never be satisfied with any one who would be blockhead enough to have me.”

Concerning this letter Ward H. Lamon writes: “Its grotesque humor, its coarse exaggerations in describing the person of a lady whom the writer was willing to marry; its imputation of toothless and weather-beaten old age to a woman really young and handsome; its utter lack of that delicacy of tone and sentiment which one naturally expects a gentleman to adopt when he thinks proper to discuss the merits of his late mistress—all these, and its defective orthography, it would certainly be more agreeable to suppress than to publish.” Herndon, on the other hand, writes: “My idea is, that Mr. Lincoln got into one of his irresistible moods of humor and fun, a state of feeling into which he frequently worked himself to avert the overwhelming effects of his constitutional melancholy—and in the inspiration of the moment penned this letter, which many regard as an unfortunate composition. As a matter of fact Mr. Lincoln was not gifted with a ready perception of the propriety of things in all cases. Nothing with him was intuitive. To have profound judgment and just discrimination he required time to think; and if facts or events were forced before him in too rapid succession the machinery of his judgment failed to work.”

Accompanying the above are two autograph letters relating to the subject. A 4 pp. 4to A. L. S. from Isaac N. Arnold, author of a life of Lincoln, to O. H. Browning, inquiring about the authenticity of Lincoln's letter, and as to his religious beliefs. Mr. Browning, to whose wife the Lincoln letter was addressed, replies in an 8 pp. 4to A. L. S., Quincy, Ill., Nov. 25, 1872: “Of his religious opinions I am not able to speak The letter published in the biography, purporting to have been written to Mrs. Browning, is genuine. After our return home, in the spring of 1838, the letter in question was received. In 1862 she first learned from him that the narrative of the letter was not fiction, but a true account of an incident in actual life.”

435. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., one page 4to, Vandalia, Feb. 14th, 1839, to John L. Stuart. Signed twice, with the seal of the State of Illinois in one corner.

* “I wish you to call at the Bank, have a note filled over my name signed below, get Butler to sign it, and also to let you have the money to renew it. Ewing wont do anything. He is not worth a damn. . . .” General Ewing led an attempt to reconsider the removal of the Capitol to Springfield, and, replying to Lincoln said: “Gentlemen, have you no other champion than this coarse and vulgar fellow to bring into the lists against me? Do you suppose I will condescend to break a lance with your low and obscure colleague.”

436. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Bill of complaint, Neff, Wanton & Co. vs. Josiah Francis, Trespass on the Case. Sangamon County Circuit Court. 3 pp. folio, all in the autograph of Lincoln and signed by him three times; two of which are for Stuart and Lincoln. Filed Nov. 4, 1839.

EARLY POLITICAL LETTER.

437. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 2pp. folio. Springfield, January 20, 1840, with address on the reverse to Hon. John S. Stuart, Washington, D. C. Bound with part of the auction catalogue in which it appeared for sale. Folio, half green morocco, gilt top.

* Fine letter about the political doings in Illinois, etc. It reads in part:—The Internal Improvement System will be put down in a lump without benefit of clergy—a proposition made in the House to-day to throw off to the Territory of Wisconsin about 14 of our Northern counties decided—Ayes 11, Noes 70—The nomination of Harrison takes first rate. You know I am never sanguine but I believe he will carry the state. The chances of doing so appears to me 25 per cent better than it did for you to beat Douglas . . .” etc.

For years the Legislature had recklessly voted many millions of dollars for various internal improvements, until in 1840 the State debt had reached enormous proportions.

438. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Legal Document, written and signed three times by Lincoln, one of these signatures being “Logan and Lincoln.” Also signed by H. H. Treat, Judge. 2 pp. folio, filed Dec. 9, 1843.

* This deposition was executed for use in connection with the lawsuit of Robert S. Todd vs. Nathaniel A. Ware. The plaintiff was the father-in-law of the President, and Ninian W. Edwards, mentioned in the body of the affidavit, was Lincoln’s brother-in-law. Erastus Wright, also mentioned, was a broker and a shark whom Lincoln despised.

439. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 3 pp. 4to, Springfield, Dec. 6, 1845, to B. F. James, Tremont, Ill. With a postscript signed “A. L.” Small piece torn from last page, slightly worn at folds.

* It was a custom in Illinois for a congressman to serve but one term, but in the campaign of 1845 John J. Hardin sought to be returned by the Whigs. Lincoln, however, showed such strength that Hardin withdrew from the contest. This letter was written early in the contest when Lincoln was doubtful of the results. “To succeed, I must have 17 votes in convention. To secure them, I think I may safely claim Sangamon 8, Menard 2, Logan 1, making 11, so that, if you and other friends can secure Dr. Boal’s entire senatorial district, that is, Tazewell 4, Woodford 1, and Marshall 1, it just covers the case. . . . Upon the whole it is my intention to give him the trial, unless clouds should rise, which are not yet discernable. This determination you need not however, as yet, announce in your paper, at least not as coming from me . . . In doing this, let nothing be said against Hardin . . . nothing deserves to be said against him. Let the pith of the whole argument be ‘Turn about is fair play’.”

440. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 5 pp. 4to, Washington, June 22, 1848, to William H. Herndon. Also, A. L. S. from Mr. Herndon, 1 p. 4to, Springfield, Nov. 23, 1866, presenting the Lincoln letter to Chas. H. Hart. Bound together in half green morocco.

* FINE POLITICAL LETTER. Mr. Herndon had written to Lincoln apprising him of the extensive defections from the party ranks among his constituents, and warned him of the public disappointment over his course in regard to the Mexican war. Lincoln in reply, writes: "Last night I was attending a sort of caucus of the whig members held in relation to the coming presidential election. The whole field of the nation was scanned, and all is high hope and confidence. Illinois is expected to better her condition in the race Now as to the young men. You must not wait to be brought forward by the older men. For instance, do you suppose that I should ever have got into notice if I had waited to be hunted up and pushed forward by older men? You young men get together and form a Rough and Ready club, and have regular meetings and speeches. Take in everybody that you can get As you go along gather up all the shrewd, wild boys about town, whether just of age or a little under age You ask me to send you all the speeches made about 'Old Zae,' the war, etc., etc. Now this makes me a little impatient. I have regularly sent you the Congressional Globe and Appendix, and you can not have examined them, or you would have discovered that they contain every speech made by every man, in both house of Congress, on every subject during the session. Can I send any more? Can I send speeches that nobody has made? You ask how Congress came to declare that war existed by the act of Mexico. Is it possible you don't understand that yet? You have at least twenty speeches in your possession that fully explain it. I will, however, try it once more I made an Internal Improvement speech day-before-yesterday, which I shall send home as soon as I can get it written out and printed, and which I suppose nobody will read."

441. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., one page 4to, Springfield, Ills., May 1, 1849, to Hon. Caleb B. Smith.

* On the change of administration at Washington various positions in the Land Office were to be given to Whigs of Illinois. Lincoln was desirous of placing several of his friends in these positions, and applied for the Commissionership for himself. He writes: "You remember my anxiety that Dr. A. G. Henry of this place, should be appointed Register of the Land Office at Minesota. Since I left Washington, I have heard nothing of the Matter. I suppose Mr. Evans of Maine, and yourself are constantly together now. I incline to believe he remembers me and would not hesitate to oblige me, when he conveniently could. Now I will do twice as much for both of you, some time, if he and you will take some leisure moment to call on Mr. Ewing urge on him the appointment of Henry"

442. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 p. folio. Springfield, Nov'r 25, 1851. To John D. Johnson, his stepbrother. Bound in with it is an autograph letter from W. H. Herndon to Charles M. Hart in regard to sending this letter and other Lincoln relics, and stating that he is sure they are genuine. Springfield, Dec. 15, 1869. Folio, half green morocco.

* An exceedingly interesting family letter, reading in part: "Your proposal about selling the East forty acres of land is all that I want or could claim for myself; but I am not satisfied with it on Mother's account—I want her to have her living, and I feel that it is my duty, to some extent, to see that she is not wronged. She has a right of dower (that is the use of one-third for life) in the other two forties; but, it seems, she has already let you take that, hook and line," etc., etc.

443. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 2 pp. 4to. Springfield, Sept. 7, 1854. To Hon. J. M. Palmer; with address on reverse, bound with a portion of the auction catalogue in which the letter appeared for sale. 4to, half green morocco, gilt top.

* Very important letter, marked at the top "Confidential." It begins; "You know how anxious I am that this Nebraska measure shall be rebuked and condemned every where. Of course I hope something from your position; yet I do not expect you to do anything which may be wrong in your judgment; nor would I have you do anything personally injurious to yourself. You are, and always have been honestly and sincerely a democrat; and I know how painful it must be to an honest and sincere man, to be urged by his party to the support of a measure, which in his conscience he believes to be wrong," etc.

Mr. Palmer was one of three Democratic State Senators who had the courage to denounce the Nebraska bill, and speak publicly against it.

444. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 page 4to, Springfield, June 7, 1855, to Henry C. Whitney.

* Henry C. Whitney, who afterward wrote "Life on the Circuit with Lincoln," was, at this time, actively in politics. Lincoln writes: "Your note containing election news is received; and for which I thank you. Logan is worse beaten than any other man ever was since elections were invented . . . beaten more than 1200 in this county."

445. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 3 pp. 4to, Springfield, August 11, 1855, to Hon. Owen Lovejoy.

* Owen Lovejoy, a violent abolitionist whose brother had been killed by Southern sympathizers, was, when this letter was written, a member of the Illinois legislature, and a candidate for Congress. Lincoln writes: "Not even you are more anxious to prevent the extension of slavery than I; and yet the political atmosphere is such, just now, that I fear to do anything, lest I do wrong. Know-nothingism has not yet entirely tumbled to pieces—nay, it is even a little encouraged by the late election in Tennessee, Kentucky and Alabama. Until we can get the elements of this organization, there is not sufficient material to successfully combat the Nebraska democracy with . . . Of their principles I think little better than I do of those of the slavery extensionists. Indeed I do not perceive how anyone professing to be sensitive to the wrongs of the negroes, can join in a league to degrade a class of white men. I have no objection to 'fuse' with any body provided I can fuse on ground which I think is right; and I believe the opponents of slavery extension could now do this, if it were not for the K. N.ism . . . As to my personal movements this summer and fall, I am quite busy trying to pick up my lost crumbs of last year. I shall be here till September; then to the circuit till the 20th, then to Cincinnati, awhile, after a Patent right case; and back to the circuit to the end of November. I can be seen here any time this month; and at Bloomington at any time from the 10th to the 17th of September . . ."

446. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Declaration of Plaintiff in the case of Nancy J. Pea vs. Greenberry Williams, suit for breach of promise, in the Sangamon County Circuit Court. 4 pp. folio, all in the autograph of Lincoln and signed "Lincoln and Herndon." Filed Dec. 7, 1855.

447. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., one page 4to, Springfield, Jan. 30, 1856, to James M. Loughborough, St. Louis, Mo. Legal letter advising a client that his suit has been started. With envelope.

448. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 p. 4to, Springfield, Aug. 1, 1856. To Hon. J. M. Palmer; bound with part of the auction catalogue in which the letter was sold. 4to, half green morocco, gilt top.

* The letter begins, "It is our judgment that whether you do or do not finally stand as a candidate for Congress, it is better for you not to publicly decline for a while," etc. It is signed also by Richard Yates, W. M. Herndon, and William Jayne.

449. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 page 4to (slightly stained), Springfield, Sept. 14, 1856, to Henry O'Connor, of Iowa.

* The contest was very close in the campaign of 1856 in Illinois, and Lincoln was one of the most active workers for the newly formed Republican party. He writes: "It would be very pleasant to strike hands with the Fremonters of Iowa, who have led the van so splendidly, in the grand charge which we hope and believe will end in a most glorious victory. All thanks, all honor to Iowa! But Iowa is out of all danger, and it is no time for us, when the battle still rages, to pay holy-day visits to Iowa. I am sure you will excuse me for remaining in Illinois, where much hard work is still to be done."

AUTOGRAPH FRAGMENT OF A SPEECH BY LINCOLN.

450. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Fragment of a Speech on Slavery. 1 page, folio. n. p.—n. d.

* The contents of this fragment show that it formed a portion of a speech made either in the campaign of 1856 or after the Lincoln-Douglas Debates in 1859. A note in the works of Lincoln, edited by Nicolay and Hay, reads: "In response to invitations from Republicans of the then Territory, Mr. Lincoln made a visit to Kansas in December, 1859, and made speeches at Elwood, Troy, Doniphan, Atchison, and Leavenworth. Among his papers were a number of disconnected sheets of autograph manuscript, which contained internal evidence that they were portions of the addresses made by him on these occasions." It is probable that this is a portion of one of those speeches. On the other hand, internal evidence shows that many of the ideas expressed are those of the famous "lost speech" of the Bloomington convention of 1856, as reported by Whitney, and, as Lincoln made nearly fifty unreported speeches during the campaign which followed, it may well be one of these.

"But there is a larger issue than the mere question of whether the spread of negro slavery shall or shall not be prohibited by Congress. . . . In support of the Nebraska bill, on its first discussion in the Senate, Senator Pettit of Indiana, declared the equality of men, as asserted in our Declaration of Independence, to be a 'self-evident lie'. In his numerous speeches, now being made in Illinois, Senator Douglas regularly argues against the doctrine of the equality of men; and while he does not draw the conclusion that the superiors ought to enslave the inferiors, he evidently wishes his hearers to draw that conclusion. . . . Now it is impossible to not see that these newspapers, and Senators, are laboring at a common object; and in so doing, are truly representing the controlling sentiment of their party. . . . It is to deny the equality of men; and to assert the natural, moral, and religious right of one class to enslave another."

LINCOLN-TRUMBULL CORRESPONDENCE.

The following correspondence (consisting of 22 letters from Abraham Lincoln and two letters from Lyman Trumbull) covers the period from the organization of the Republican party in 1856 to the inauguration of Lincoln in 1861. Perhaps no era in American politics has been so fraught with critical situations as those five years of preliminary strife between the North and the South; years of political bickerings and compromise, which called for the best endeavors of the most powerful minds of the country.

No character stands out stronger, in those years of trial, than that of Abraham Lincoln, and these letters give a clear insight into his political wisdom, and his keen perception of individual capabilities. They reveal many interesting and some unknown details of his contests with Douglas; his opinion of the Lecompton constitution, its abettors and foes; a characteristic fling at Greeley and the New York Tribune; many evidences of his friendship for Mr. Trumbull; his opinions of a number of the great men of the day, etc., etc. Throughout the whole series Lincoln shows a readiness to step aside that others may fill his place, but never recedes in the slightest degree from his principles. For instance, the last three letters disclose Lincoln's firm stand against the extension of slavery and the fact that he will fight to preserve the Union; and, in the last, he expresses a wish to have the North as fully prepared for war as the South.

451. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 2 pp. 4to, Springfield, June 7, 1856.

* Written immediately before the Republican convention at Philadelphia, where Fremont was nominated, this letter shows that Lincoln's judgment of the chances of each candidate for President was correct, for in the campaign which followed Fremont was unsparingly criticised by the papers as "shallow, vain-glorious, extravagant," etc., and his fiery temper lost many votes. Bissel had been nominated for Governor of Illinois and was elected with the whole state ticket. Lincoln writes: "The news of Buchanan's nomination came yesterday and a good many whigs, of conservative feelings, and slight pro-slavery proclivities, withal, are inclining to go for him, and will do it, unless the Anti-Nebraska nomination shall be such as to divert them. The man to effect that object is Judge McLean, and his nomination would save every whig, except such as have already gone over hook and line, as Singleton, Momsen, Constable, and others. J. F. Stuart, Anthony Thornton, James M. Davis (the old settler) and others like them, will heartily go for McLean, as against Chase, Banks, Seward, Blair or Fremont. I think they would stand Blair or Fremont for Vice President, but not more. . . . Since the nomination of Bissel we are in good times in Illinois, save at the point I have indicated. If we can save pretty nearly all the whigs, we shall elect him, I think, by a very large majority. . . . Let this be confidential."

452. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 2 pp. 4to, Springfield, Aug. 11, 1856.

* Relates to the campaign of 1856. Lincoln was at the head of the electoral ticket for Illinois. He traversed the State in every direction and made about 50 speeches, concerning which he writes: "I have just returned from speaking at Paris and Grandview in Edgar County, and Charleston and Shelbyville, in Coles and Shelby counties. Our whole trouble along there has been and is Fillmoreism. It loosened considerably during the week, not under my preaching, but under the election returns from Mo. Ky. Ark. & N. C. I think we shall ultimately get all the Fillmore men who are really anti-slavery extension—the rest will probably go to Buchanan where they rightfully belong, if they do not, so much the better for us. The great difficulty with Anti-slavery extension Fillmore men, is that they suppose Fillmore as good as Fremont on that question; and it is a delicate point to argue them out of it, they are so ready to think you are abusing Mr. Fillmore . . ."

453. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page 4to, Chicago, Nov. 30, 1857.

* In 1857 President Buchanan, who had committed himself to the submission of the whole constitution to the people of Kansas, broke his pledge and made the admission of Kansas under the Lecompton Constitution the policy of his administration. Douglas, who had, heretofore, been called Buchanan's manager, now took the ground openly that the whole Kansas constitution must be submitted to the people. Lincoln, in this letter, refers to the complication as follows: "What think you of the probable 'rumpus' among the democracy over the Kansas constitution? I think the Republicans should stand clear of it. In their view both the President and Douglas are wrong, and they should not espouse the cause of either, because they may consider the other a little the farther wrong of the two. From what I am told, Douglas tried, before leaving, to draw off some Republicans on the dodge, and even succeeded in making some impression on one or two."

454. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page, 4to, Springfield, Dec. 18, 1857.

* Still referring to the difficulties in the Democratic party, he writes: "Nearly all the Democrats here stick to Douglas; but they are hobbling along with the idea that there is no split between him and Buchanan. Accordingly they indulge the most extravagant eulogies on B. and his manager; and insist that he has not endorsed the Lecompton constitution."

455. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page 4to, Bloomington, Dec. 28, 1857.

* The defeat of the Lecompton constitution in Congress left Douglas still a towering figure in national politics: but, although Republicans of the East,—including Greeley, Seward, etc.—desired to see him returned to the Senate by Republican votes, the party in Illinois did not trust him, and, furthermore, wanted Lincoln in the Senate; hence this letter: "What does the New York 'Tribune' mean by its constant eulogising, and admiring, and magnifying Douglas? Does it, in this, speak the sentiments of the Republicans at Washington? Have they concluded that the Republican cause, generally, can be best promoted by sacrificing us here in Illinois? If so we would like to know it soon; it will save a great deal of labor to surrender at once. As yet I have heard of no Republican here going over to Douglas; but if the 'Tribune' continues to din his praises into the ears of its five or ten thousand Republican readers in Illinois, it is more than can be hoped that all will stand firm. I am not complaining—I only wish a fair understanding. . . .'

456. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 2 pp. 4to, Springfield, June 23, 1858.

* It had been charged that the Republicans had fused with the Buchanan Democrats to defeat Douglas, and as soon as Lincoln was nominated to run for Senator against Douglas he wrote the following answer to this charge: "In relation to the charge of an alliance between the Republicans and the Buchanan men in the state, if being rather pleased to see a division in the ranks of the Demoeraey, and not doing anything to prevent it, be such alliance, then there is such alliance, at least that is true of me. But if it be intended to charge that there is any alliance by which there is to be any concession of principle on either side, or furnishing of sinews, or partition of offices, or swapping of votes to any extent, or the doing of anything great or small, on the one side for a consideration expressed or implied on the other, no such thing is true so far as I know or believe. Before this reaches you, you will have seen the proceedings of our Republician State Convention. It was really a grand affair and was in all respects all that our friends could desire. The resolution in effect nominating me for Senator was passed more for the object of closing down upon the everlasting croaking about Wentworth than anything else. The signs look reasonably well."

457. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 3 pp. 4to, Springfield, Dec. 11, 1858.

* As soon as the campaign of 1858 was over and Douglas elected Senator, the politicians immediately prepared for the Presidential contest of 1860. Douglas at once began to pave the way to run for the Democratic party and Lincoln, as usual, opposed him. Lincoln's opinion of Douglas is clearly stated in this letter. "Since you left Douglas has gone South making characteristic speeches, and seeking to reinstate himself in that section. The majority of the Democratic politicians of the nation mean to kill him, but I doubt whether they will adopt the aptest way to do it. Their true way is to present him with no new test, let him into the Charleston Convention, and then outvote him, and nominate another. In that case he will be as powerless as they can wish. On the other hand if they push a slave code upon him, as a test, he will bolt at once, turn upon us, as in the case of Lecompton, and claim that all Northern men shall make common cause in electing him president, as the best means of breaking down the slave power. In that case the Democratic party go into a minority inevitably; and the struggle in the whole North will be, as it was in Illinois last Summer and Fall, whether the Republican party can maintain its identity, or be broken up to form the tail of Douglas' new kite. Some of our great Republican doctors will then have a splendid chance to swallow the pills they so eagerly prescribed for us last Spring. Still I hope they will not swallow them; and although I do not feel that I owe the said doctors much, I will help them to the best of my ability, to reject the said pills. The truth is, the Republican principle can, in no wise live with Douglas; and it is arrant folly now, as it was last Spring, to waste time, and scatter labor already performed, in dallying with him."

458. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page 4to, Springfield, Jan. 29, 1859.

* "Our friends here from different parts of the state, in and out of the legislature, are united, resolute, and determined, and I think it almost certain that we shall be far better organized in 1860 than ever before."

459. TRUMBULL TO LINCOLN. A. L. S., 4 pp. 8vo, Washington, Jan. 28, 1859.

* Informing Mr. Lincoln that John Wentworth had written an article, intended for publication in the Chicago Journal, but which the editor of that paper had refused to print, imputing bad faith toward Lincoln on the part of N. B. Judd, B. C. Cook, and others including Trumbull, in the last senatorial campaign. Trumbull had received a copy of this article, and as its object was to create enmity between friends, and as it would probably be published somewhere, he now assures Lincoln that the statements and insinuations are false.

460. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 2 pp. 4to, Springfield, Feb. 3, 1859.

* Lincoln's reply to the preceding letter. "The article mentioned by you, prepared for the Chicago Journal, I have not seen; nor do I wish to see it, though I heard of it a month or more ago. Any effort to put enmity between you and me is as idle as the wind. I do not for a moment doubt you, Judd, Cook, Palmer, and the Republicans generally coming from the old Democratic ranks, were as sincerely anxious for my success in the late contest as myself, and I beg to assure you beyond all possible cavil that you can scarcely be more anxious to be sustained two years hence than I am that you shall be sustained. I cannot conceive it possible for me to be a rival of yours or to take sides against you in favor of any rival."

461. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page 4to, Springfield, Nov. 28, 1859.

* I agree with you entirely about the contemplated election of Forney. Nothing could be more short-sighted than to place so strong a man as Forney in position to keep Douglas on foot. I know nothing of Forney personally; but I would put no man in position to help our enemies in the point of our hardest strain." John Weiss Forney was defeated for U. S. Senator in 1857, strongly supported Douglas against Buchanan, and was at this time helping the Republican party.

462. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page 4to, Springfield, Dec. 25, 1859.

* Trumbull had summed up the moral and legal aspects of the John Brown raid in a brief but forcible speech on Dec. 6, 1859. Lincoln writes: "I have carefully read your speech, and I judge that, by the interruptions, it came out a much better speech than you expected to make when you began. It really is an excellent one, many of the points being most admirably made."

463. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 2 pp. 8vo, Springfield, Mar. 16, 1860.

* After referring to Trumbull's speech against Douglas, he writes: "Another matter; our friend Delahay wants to be one of the Senators from Kansas. Certainly it is not for outsiders to obtrude their interference. Delahay has suffered a great deal in our cause and been very faithful to it, as I understand. He writes me that some of the members of the Kansas legislature have written you in a way that your simple answer might help him. I wish you would consider whether you cannot assist that far, without impropriety. . . ."

464. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page 12mo (slightly torn), Chicago, March 26, 1860.

* The strenuous efforts made by the Republicans to elect Buckingham Governor of Connecticut was opposed by the venal use of money in buying votes, the importation of voters from New York, and other underhand methods. Lincoln writes: "They are having a desperate struggle in Connecticut. . . . Having been there, I know they are proud of you as a son of their own soil, and would be moved to greater exertion by your presence among them. Can you not go? . . . The fiendish attempt now being made upon Connecticut must not be allowed to succeed."

465. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 2 pp. 8vo, Springfield, April 7, 1860.

* It was in this month, amid the general canvas of possible candidates, that Lincoln first thought of himself as a nominee for President. His estimate of his own chances was modest and even that was shared by few. He writes: "I am trying to keep out of the contest among our friends for the Gubernatorial nomination; but from what I hear, the result is in considerable doubt. We have just had a clear party victory in our City election; and our friends are more encouraged, and our enemies more cowed by it, than by anything since the organization of the Republican party. . . . I can scarcely give an opinion as to what effect a nomination of Judge McLean, by the Union convention, would have. . . . If he were ten years younger he would be our best candidate."

466. TRUMBULL TO LINCOLN. Autograph Letter, not signed, 7 pp. 8vo, Washington, Apr. 24, 1860.

* Evidently the original draft of the letter to Lincoln. He writes: "My impression is as between you and Gov. Seward, if the contest should assume that shape, that he would most likely succeed. . . . Can Seward be elected if nominated? The impression here is among all except his warm friends that he cannot. The delegations from Conn. & R. I. say he would lose both states, and so far as I know, those from N. J., Pa. except Cameron, and Indiana express the same opinion." He then goes on to urge that McLean be supported if the tide turns against Lincoln. He closes: "Now I wish you to understand that I am for you first and foremost, and want our state to send not only delegates instructed in your favor, but your friends, who will stand by you and nominate you if possible, never faltering unless you yourself shall so advise."

467. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 3 pp. 4to, Springfield, April 29, 1860.

* Answering the preceding letter, he writes: "As you request, I will be entirely frank. The taste is in my mouth a little; and this, no doubt, disqualifies me, to some extent, to form correct opinions. You may confidently rely, however, that by no advice or consent of mine shall my pretensions be pressed to the point of endangering our common cause. Now as to my opinion about the chances of others in Illinois, I think neither Seward nor Bates can carry Illinois if Douglas shall be on the track; and that either of them can, if he shall not be. I rather think McLean could carry it, with Douglas on or off. In other words, I think McLean is stronger in Illinois, taking all sections of it, than either Seward or Bates, and I think Seward the weakest of the three. I hear no objection to McLean, except his age, but that objection seems to occur to every one, and it is possible it might leave him no stronger than the others. . . . A word now for your own special benefit. You better write no letter which can be distorted into opposition, or quasi-opposition, to me. There are men on the constant watch for such things, out of which to prejudice my peculiar friends against you. While I have no more suspicion of you than I have of my best friend living, I am kept in a constant struggle against questions of this sort. I have hesitated some to write this paragraph, lest you should suspect I do it for my own benefit and not for yours, but on reflection I conclude you will not suspect me. Let no eye but your own see this—not that there is anything wrong or even ungenerous in it, but it would be misconstrued."

468. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page, 8vo, Springfield, May 1, 1860.

* Qualifying his last letter to Trumbull: "In my last letter to you I believe I said I thought Mr. Seward would be weaker in Illinois than Mr. Bates. I write this to qualify that opinion so far as to say I think S. Weaker than B. in our close Legislation districts; but probably not weaker taking the whole State over. We now understand that Douglas will be nominated . . ."

469. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page 12mo, Springfield, May 26, 1860.

* Lincoln was nominated for President by the Republican Convention on May 18. He writes on the progress of the campaign: "The nominations start well here, and everything else as far as I have heard. We may have a back-set yet. Give my respects to the Republican Senators, and especially to Mr. Hamlin, Mr. Seward, Gen. Cameron, and Mr. Wade."

470. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 2 pp. 8vo, Springfield, May 31, 1860.

* Refers to Lincoln's letter accepting the nomination for President. "Please say to Mr. Hamlin that my letter of acceptance is already written and forwarded to Mr. Ashmun at Springfield, Mass.; that I would send him, Mr. Hamlin, a copy, only that Mr. Ashmun, when here, sought and obtained a promise from me that I would furnish a copy to no one; that the letter is very short, and, I think, conflicts with none of Mr. Morey's suggestions, except that it may be published by Mr. Ashmun before the Baltimore convention. Perhaps it would be best for Mr. Hamlin and yourself not to communicate the fact that the letter of acceptance is already written."

471. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 2 pp. 8vo, Springfield, June 5, 1860.

* Another letter on the progress of the campaign: "I see by the papers this morning, that Mr. Fillmore refused to go with us. What do the New Yorkers at Washington think of this. Gov. Reeder was here last evening, direct from Pennsylvania. He is entirely confident of that state and of the general result. I do not remember to have heard Gen. Cameron's opinion of Penn. Weed was here and saw us, but he showed no signs whatever of the intriguer. He asked for nothing and said N. Y. is safe without conditions. Remembering that Peter denied his Lord with an oath, after most solemnly protesting that he never would, I will not swear I will make no committals, but I do not think I will. . . ."

472. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 1 page 12mo, Springfield, Dec. 10, 1860. Private and confidential.

* After the election, compromise between the North and South was discussed by many influential men at Washington, and Lincoln was kept well informed of the various terms proposed, as is shown by this letter: "Let there be no compromise on the question of extending slavery. If there be, all our labor is lost, and ere long must be done over again. The dangerous ground—that into which some of our friends have a hankering to run—is Pop. Sov. Have none of it. Stand firm. The tug has to come; and better now than any time hereafter."

473. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L., 1 page 12mo, signature cut from bottom and page repaired, Springfield, Dec. 17, 1860.

* Another letter on the much discussed compromise. ". . . . If any of our friends do prove false and fix up a compromise on the territorial question, I am for fighting again—that is all. It is but repetition for me to say I am for an honest enforcement of the Constitution—the fugitive slave clause included. . . ."

474. LINCOLN TO TRUMBULL. A. L. S., 2 pp. 12mo, Springfield, Dec. 24, 1860.

* After mentioning that Mr. Blair was a possible candidate for his cabinet, Lincoln for the first time, probably, threatens actual hostilities towards the South. "Dispatches have come here two days in succession that the forts in South Carolina will be surrendered by order, or consent at least, of the President. I can scarcely believe this, but if it prove true, I will, if our friends in Washington concur, announce publicly at once that they are to be retaken after the inauguration. This will give the Union men a rallying cry, and preparations will proceed somewhat on this side as well as on the other."

(See Illustration.)

Springfield, Ill. Dec. 24, 1860
Hon. Lyman Trumbull
My dear Sir

I expect to be able to offer Mr. Blair a place in the cabinet, but I can ~~or not~~, or yet, be committed on the matter, to any extent. whatever.

Despatches have come here two days in succession, that the Forts in South Carolina, will be surrendered by the rebels, or consent at least, of the President. I can scarcely believe this, but if it proves true, I will, if our friends at Washington can, announce publicly ^{at once} that they are to be retaken after the inauguration. This will give the Union men a rallying cry, and preparations will proceed soon.

475. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 page 4to (slightly torn at folds), Springfield, Feb. 20, 1857, to John E. Rosetti. "PRIVATE."

* Herndon quotes this letter "as a specimen of the perplexities which frequently beset Mr. Lincoln when his wife came in contact with others." It was written to the editor of a Springfield newspaper. "Your note about the little paragraph in the Republican was received yesterday, since which time I have been too unwell to notice it. I had not supposed you wrote or approved it When the paper was brought to my house, my wife said to me, 'Now are you going to take another worthless little paper?' I said to her evasively, 'I have not directed the paper to be left.' From this, in my absence, she sent the message to the carrier. This is the whole story."

476. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 2 pages 4to, Springfield, Dec. 18, 1857. To Henry C. Whitney.

* The "Long John" referred to in this letter was, John Wentworth, first Republican mayor of Chicago, holding office in 1857 and 1860. He issued the first proclamation after Fort Sumter was fired upon, calling on his fellow citizens to organize and send soldiers to the war. "Let me say to you confidentially that I do not entirely appreciate what the Republican papers of Chicago are so constantly saying against 'Long John.' I consider those papers truly devoted to the Republican cause, and not unfriendly to me; but I do think that more of what they say against 'Long John' is dictated by personal malice than themselves are conscious of. We cannot afford to lose the services of 'Long John' and I do believe the unrelenting warfare made upon him, is injuring our cause. I mean this to be confidential."

LINCOLN'S SCRAPBOOK, MADE FOR CAPTAIN JAMES N. BROWN, AND USED BY HIM IN THE CAMPAIGN OF 1858.

477. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Original Note Book in which Lincoln pasted contemporary newspaper accounts of his speeches relating to negro equality; containing manuscript notes by him, and a long autograph letter.

On the inside of the front cover Lincoln has written:—"The following extracts are taken from various speeches of mine delivered at various times and places, and I believe they contain the substance of all I have ever said about 'negro equality.' The first three are from my answer to Judge Douglas, Oct. 16, 1854—at Peoria."

The three newspaper clippings of the speeches follow, pasted down and numbered: On the next page Lincoln has written:—"The fourth extract is from a speech delivered June 26, 1857, at Springfield." The printed speech follows. On the next page is a MSS. note:—"The following marked 5 is from my speech at Chicago, July 10, 1858. Because garbled extracts are often taken from this speech, I have given the whole which touches 'negro equality.'" The printed speech follows. On the next page there is another note which reads:—"The following marked 6, was brought in immediately after reading the first extract in this scrap-book, in the first joint meeting with Judge Douglas, Aug. 21, 1858 at Ottawa." The reverse has a note:—"The following marked 7 is from my speech at the fourth joint meeting, Sept. 18, 1858, at Charleston."

Following these clippings there is a long autograph letter to "Hon. J. N. Brown," dated Springfield, Oct. 18, 1858, beginning: "I do not perceive how I can express myself more plainly than I have done in the foregoing extracts. In four of them I have expressly disclaimed all intention to bring about social and political equality between the white and black races, and, in all the rest, I have done the same thing by clear implication," etc. This letter occupies 8 pages of the book, and is signed. The remainder of the book is made up of clippings and pencil notes by Mr. Brown. 18mo, worn leather, in a new morocco slip-case.

* Captain Brown, who called himself at this time a "Lincoln Republican," was a man of considerable popularity in Sangamon County. Originally a Whig, and from Kentucky, he found it difficult to answer the artful charges of Douglas and his followers that Lincoln's aim was to put the negroes on a par with the white voters. He wrote to Lincoln that he felt sure these charges were false, but that he had trouble to formulate a convincing denial. In reply Lincoln made up this book to define his position clearly, and Captain Brown carried it with him through the remainder of the campaign, reading from it frequently in public as "Lincoln's own words on the question." Nothing more interesting than this little book could be secured by the collector of historical relics.

478. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 page 4to, Springfield, June 24, 1858, to H. C. Whitney.

* The article referred to in this letter accuses Lincoln of opposing the Mexican War, and, while in Congress, of voting against granting supplies for the army in Mexico. "Your letter enclosing the attack of the "Times" upon me was received this morning. Give yourself no concern about my voting against the supplies, unless you are without faith that a lie can be successfully contradicted. There is not a word of truth in the charge and I am just considering a little as to the best shape to put a contradiction in . . ."

479. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S. one page, 4to, Springfield, Nov. 19, 1858, to Gen. Eleazar A. Paine (worn at folds and repaired).

* Written just after his defeat by Douglas for Senator. ". . . . Well, the election is over; and, in the main point, we are beaten. Still, my view is that the fight must go on. Let no one falter. The question is not half settled. New splits and divisions will soon be upon our adversaries, and we shall fuse again."

480. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Legal Document. Robert Dean vs. Bernard Kelly, Trespass on the Case. Damage $12,000. At the Circuit Court of Champaign County. All in the autograph of Lincoln and signed by him for Whitney, Davis, Swett and Lincoln. 4 pp. folio. Term of 1858.

AUTOGRAPH FRAGMENT OF A SPEECH BY LINCOLN.

481. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Fragment of a Speech on Equality. Two pages, 4to. n. p.—n. d.

* Probably a portion of the speech made by Lincoln at Cincinnati, September 17, 1859. In the works of Lincoln, edited by Nicolay and Hay, the whole of that speech is quoted except the above portion, in the place of which a note explains: "[The speaker proceeded to argue that the hired laborer, with his ability to become an employer, must have every precedence over him who labors under the inducement of force. . . .]". Evidently these two pages were separated from Lincoln's manuscript before the editors compiled his works. Nicolay and Hay do, however, publish this fragment in the works, but place it in another period, under the heading: "Fragment. On Slavery. [July 1, 1854?]"'. Lincoln made very few speeches until October, 1854, and those were devoted largely to the repeal of the Missouri compromise. But in 1859 almost every speech he delivered treated, at length, of slavery and equality.

" We know Southern men declare that their slaves are better off than hired laborers amongst us. There is no permanent class of hired laborers amongst us. Twenty-five years ago I was a hired laborer. The hired laborer of yesterday labors on his own account to-day, and will hire others to labor for him to-morrow. Advancement—improvement in condition—is the order of things in a society of equals. As labor is the common burden of our race, so the effort of some to shift their share of the burden onto the shoulders of others is the great durable curse of the race. Originally a curse for transgression upon the whole race, when, as by slavery, it is concentrated on a part only, it becomes the double-refined curse of God upon his creatures. Free labor has the inspiration of hope; pure slavery has no hope. The power of hope upon human exertion and happiness is wonderful. The slave-master himself has a conception of it, and hence the system of tasks among slaves."

482. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Notes used by Lincoln in a Speech at City Hall, Hartford, Connecticut, on the evening of March 5th, 1860. 2 pp. 12mo, mounted and bound in green levant morocco, gilt edges.

* These notes, or rather headings, were left on the table by Lincoln and preserved by Jesse H. Lord, reporter of the Hartford Daily Times. Some of the headings are "Sectionalism, Conservatism, John Brown, Indifference," etc.

PRESIDENTIAL CAMPAIGN LETTERS.

483. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., one page 12mo, Springfield, Ills., May 26, 1860, to Hon. C. B. Smith, worn at folds, slightly stained.

* Caleb B. Smith and Cameron of Pennsylvania were the only men to whom prenomination promises were made by Lincoln's friends to influence votes for Lincoln. Both were promised places on Lincoln's cabinet and C. B. Smith was made Secretary of Interior after the election. Lincoln writes: "I am, indeed, much indebted to Indiana; and, as my home friends tell me, much to you personally. Your saying you no longer consider Ia. a doubtful state, is very gratifying. The thing starts well everywhere—too well, I almost fear, to last. But we are in, and stick or go through, must be the word. . . ."

484. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., one page 12mo, Springfield, Ills., July 23, 1860, to C. B. Smith.

* “. . . . From present appearances we might succeed in the general result, without Indiana; but with it, failure is scarcely possible. Therefore, put in your best efforts. . . .”

485. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 3 pp. 8vo, Springfield, Ills., June 19, 1860, to Hon. Samuel Galloway. “Especially Confidential.”

* This letter relates to J. Q. Howard's Life of Abraham Lincoln, which, after the “Wigwam Edition,” was probably the pioneer biography. “Messrs. Follet, Foster & Co.'s Life of me is not by my authority; and I have scarcely been so much astounded by anything, as their public announcement that it is authorized by me. They have fallen into some strange misunderstanding. I certainly knew they contemplated publishing a biography, and I certainly did not object to their doing so, upon their own responsibility. I even took pains to facilitate them. But, at the same time, I made myself tiresome, if not hoarse, with repeating to Mr. Howard, their only agent seen by me, my protest that I authorized nothing—would be responsible for nothing. How they could so misunderstand me, passes comprehension. As a matter, wholly my own, I would authorize no biography, without time and opportunity to carefully examine and consider every word of it; and, in this case, in the nature of things, I can have no such time and opportunity. But, in my present position, when, by the lessons of the past, and the united voice of all discreet friends, I can neither write nor speak a word for the public, how dare I to send forth, by my authority, a volume of hundreds of pages, for adversaries to make points upon without end? Were I to do so, the Convention would have a right to re-assemble, and substitute another name for mine. . . .”

486. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT. 11¼ pp. folio. Unsigned. Endorsed in Pencil at top by Lyman Trumbull: “Furnished by Mr. Lincoln and copied into my remarks, to be read at the Celebration at Springfield, Ill. Nov. 20, 1860.”

* There was a grand celebration at Springfield over the election of Lincoln and Hamlin, at which speeches were made by Trumbull, Palmer, and Yates. Lincoln had been urged to say something at this meeting that would tend to quiet the rising surges of disunion at the South, but he thought that the time for him to speak had not yet come. However, he desired that the influence of this public meeting should be peaceful and not irritating, and to this end he wrote the above manuscript, handed it to Trumbull, and asked him to make it a part of his speech. It reads, in part: “I have labored in and for the Republican organization with entire confidence that, whenever it shall be in power, each and all of the states will be left in as complete control of their own affairs respectively, and at as perfect liberty to choose and employ their own means of protecting property and preserving peace and order within their respective limits, as they have ever been under any administration. . . . I am rather glad of the military preparations in the South. It will enable the people the more easily to suppress any uprisings there, which those misrepresentations of purpose may have encouraged.”

487. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 page 12mo, Chicago, Nov. 26, 1860, to H. C. Whitney.

* "Your note in behalf of Mr. Alshuler was received. I gave him a sitting . . ." Mr. Alshuler at this time made his second portrait of Lincoln,—his first was taken in 1857.

ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT OF LINCOLN'S PLAN OF CAMPAIGN.

488. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Original Manuscript Memorandum for Plan of Campaign written in September, 1861. 2½ pages folio, mounted and bound in green levant morocco, gilt, gilt edges, in cloth slip case.

* Throughout the summer of 1861 conditions became so bad in East Tennessee, with the rebels confiscating and burning private property, murdering and imprisoning Union men and women, that President Lincoln used every effort to enable the Western army to capture the important places and gain control of this district. Late in September he went to the War Department and made the above memorandum, which though not in the form of an express order, was nevertheless intended as a substantial direction of military affairs. It begins: "On or about the 5th of October (the exact day to be determined hereafter) I wish a movement made to seize and hold a point on the railroad connecting Virginia and Tennessee, near the mountain pass called Cumberland Gap." On page 2 he writes: "As to movements my idea is, that the one for the coast, and that on Cumberland Gap be simultaneous, and that in the meantime preparation, vigilant watching, and the defensive only be acted upon, this, however, not to apply to Fremont's operations in Northern and Middle Missouri. That before these movements Thomas and Sherman shall respectively watch but not attack Zollicoffer and Buckner. That when the coast and Gap movements shall be ready Sherman is merely to stand fast, while all at Cincinnati and all at Louisville, with all on the line, concentrate rapidly at Lexington, and thence to Thomas's camp, joining him, and the whole thence upon the Gap." Notwithstanding this almost express order, one obstacle after another arose to prevent its being carried out.

489. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). L. S., 5 pp. 4to, Executive Mansion, Sept. 22, 1861, to Hon. O. H. Browning.

* Lincoln has written "Private and Confidential" across the top of the first page and made several corrections in the body of the letter. Mr. Browning was a friend and supporter of Fremont and a warm friend of Lincoln. The President here replies to his letter criticising the order which revoked Fremont's proclamation of confiscation and emancipation: "Gen. Fremont's proclamation, as to confiscation of property, and the liberation of slaves, is purely political and not within the range of military law or necessity . . . If the general needs them he can seize them and use them, but when the need is past, it is not for him to fix their permanent future condition. That must be settled according to laws made by lawmakers, and not by military proclamations . . . Now as to policy. No doubt the thing was popular in some quarters . . . The Kentucky Legislature would not budge till that proclamation was modified; and General Anderson telegraphed me that on the news of General Fremont having actually issued deeds of manumission, a whole company of our volunteers threw down their arms and disbanded. . . . I think to lose Kentucky is nearly the same as to lose the whole game. Kentucky gone, we cannot hold Missouri, nor, as I think, Maryland. These all against us, and the job on our hands is too large for us. We would as well consent to separation at once, including the surrender of this capital. . . ."

LINCOLN'S ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT DRAFTS OF A BILL TO ABOLISH SLAVERY IN DELAWARE.

490. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Drafts of a Proposed Bill for Gradual and Compensated Abolition of Slavery in Delaware. Written in November, 1861, by Abraham Lincoln. With manuscript and printed copies of the Bill embodying President Lincoln's Suggestion, autograph letters of George P. Fisher and John G. Nicolay. Mounted to folio, green levant morocco, gilt, gilt edges, in a cloth slip case.

* Lincoln's first draft of the proposed bill consists of $1\frac{1}{4}$ pages, folio, and provides for the discontinuance of slavery in Delaware in 1867, the U. S. government to pay for the slaves in five equal instalments. His second draft is written on one page, folio, and of this Lincoln writes on one page, folio, "On reflection, I like No. 2 the better. By it the Nation would pay the State \$23,200 per annum for thirty-one years—and, All born after the passage of the act would be born free—and, All slaves above the age of 35 years would become free on the passage of the act—and, All others would become free on arriving at the age of 35 years, until January 1893—when, All remaining of all ages would become free, subject to apprenticeship for minors born of slave mothers, up to the respective ages of 21 and 18. If the State would desire to have the money sooner, let the bill be altered only in fixing the time of final emancipation earlier, and making the annual instalments correspondingly fewer in number, by which they would also be correspondingly larger in amount—For instance, strike out '1893', and insert '1872', and strike out 'thirty-one' annual instalments, and insert 'ten' annual instalments. The instalments would then be \$17,920 instead of \$23,200 as now—In all other particulars let the bill stand precisely as it is."

A copy of this second draft follows, as rewritten by the friends of the measure in Delaware, embodying the necessary details to become a law of that State; together with a printed broadside copy of the act, which was circulated among the members of the Legislature. Three letters are inserted which relate to these manuscripts; one from John G. Nicolay, 2 pp. 8vo, Wash. 1896; and two from George P. Fisher, Member of Congress from Delaware when this bill was presented, and, later, presiding judge at the trial of Surratt. In the letter dated at Milford, Feb. 12, 1896, Mr. Fisher writes referring to the presentation of this bill to the Delaware Legislature: "If I could have a talk with you 'vis-a-vis' and confidentially, I could better acquaint you with 'inside history' and say to you more than I am willing to entrust to the mail." In his second letter, Mar. 23, 1896, he considers publishing an account of this bill and writes that it will take fifteen or twenty thousand words. Evidently this account was never published. He also certifies to the genuineness of these Lincoln manuscripts.

491. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Document signed. Appointment of Edward Joy Morris as Minister Resident at Constantinople. 1 p. oblong 4to, dated July 15, 1861. Signed also by William H. Seward, Secretary of State.

Be it enacted by the State of Delaware that in condition the United States of America were at the present session of Congress, engage by law to pay and thereafter faithfully pay to the said State of Delaware on 1st six per cent bonds of said United States the sum of seven hundred and nineteen thousand one hundred dollars, in thirty one equal annual instalments, there shall be neither slavery nor involuntary servitude, at any time after the first day of January in the year of our Lord one thousand eight hundred and ninety three, within the said State of Delaware, except in the punishment of crime, where of the party shall have been duly convicted; nor, except in the punishment of crime as aforesaid, shall any person who shall be born after the passage of this act, nor any person above the age of thirty five years, be held in slavery, or to involuntary servitude, within said State of Delaware, at any time after the passage of this act.

And be it further enacted that said State shall, in good faith prevent, so far as possible, the carrying of any person out of said State, into involuntary servitude, beyond the limits of said State, at any time after the passage of this act.

And be it further enacted that said State may make provision of apprenticeship, not to extend beyond the age of twentyone years for males, nor eighteen for females, for all minors whose mothers were not free at the respective births of such minors.

MANUSCRIPT DRAFT OF A BILL TO ABOLISH SLAVERY IN DELAWARE.
IN LINCOLN'S HANDWRITING.

(See No. 490.)

492. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 page 12mo, Executive Mansion, August 7, 1861, to Lieut. Genl. Scott.

* "If it be true . . . that you think Gen. Wool should go to Fortress Monroe, let him be ordered there at once." Gen. Wool had charge of the Department of the East in 1860, and at the opening of the Civil War saved Fortress Monroe by timely re-enforcements, afterward commanding there at the head of the Department of Virginia.

493. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., one page 12mo, Executive Mansion, Oct. 14, 1861, to Secretary of Interior, Caleb B. Smith.

* "How is this? I supposed I was appointing for Register of Wills a citizen of this District. Now the Commission comes to me 'Moses Kelly, of New Hampshire.' I do not like this."

494. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Autograph Dispatch Signed, one page 12mo, Washington, Nov. 5, 1861, to Brig. Gen. Curtis, St. Louis, Mo. "What has been done in the matter sent you by Mr. Swett?"

* This dispatch relates to the order sent to Gen. Curtis, October 24th, by the hand of Mr. Swett, relieving Gen. Fremont and placing Gen. Hunter in command of the Department of the West.

495. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Autograph Dispatch Signed, 1 page 4to, Washington, July 28, 1862, to Gov. Gamble.

* "You ask four Regiments for Gen. Schofield, and he asks the same of the Sec. of War. Please raise them for me, as I have them not, nor can have, till some governor give them to me." Guerrilla bands were, at this time, over-running Missouri and Gen. Schofield's forces, divided into six divisions, were unable to cope with the situation; hence the request from H. R. Gamble, Governor of Missouri. Lincoln had, on July 2, called for 300,000 troops, but none had, as yet, been placed at his disposal.

496. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Visiting Card of Robert T. Lincoln on which President has written: "Sec. of War, please put Bob in the way to find where John Reed, of Co. C. 11 Mass. may be found. A. Lincoln, July 28, 1862." On the reverse Secretary Stanton has written: "The Adjutant General will please furnish the within information. Stanton. To Capt. Vincent." Enclosed in a small morocco case.

497. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Manuscript Notes sent to the Secretary of the Navy, Gideon Welles. Executive Mansion, Nov. 6, 1862, 3 pp. 12mo.

* Lincoln, in these notes, evidently suggests two ideas for providing a vessel of war to capture Confederate blockade runners. "First idea. Purchase one of those now being constructed for our enemies . . . deliverable at a given point, fully equipped . . . Second idea. Charter for twelve months with the privilege of purchasing . . . then advertise for some port in the vicinity of the intended cruising ground. Charter also another on the same condition, dispatch her with fuel, stores and the armament to an unfrequented harbor, under the direction of a reliable man, there to await orders . . . first named steamer join the tender and arm the cruiser. Pursue the enemy. . . ." On another page is written and signed: "I was asked to inquire what the Govt. would pay, on delivery, for the capture of a 'Secesh vessel.' I could not answer and so refer the question to the Sec. of the Navy."

498. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. N. S. on card. Nov. 8, 1862. Recommending an employee of the White House, Mr. Calvert, as "a very faithful, worthy and gentlemanly young man."

499. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). PEYTON (COL. J. E.). Application for an extension of time in which to raise his regiment in Philadelphia, addressed to Adjutant General Thomas. There are signatures of 12 civilians certifying to the difficulties under which Col. Peyton had been working, including that of Mayor Alexander Henry of Phila., the U. S. Attorney, U. S. Marshall, and others.

On the back are three endorsements, as follows: "I recommend and ask that the time be extended. A. G. Curtin, Gov. Penna." "Allow Col. Peyton the additional time required, unless there be reason to the contrary unknown to me. A. Lincoln. Jan. 7, 1863." "There is good and valid reason for not extending the time & the Secretary of War declines to do it. Edwin M. Stanton, Sec. of War." 4 pp. 4to, Philadelphia, Jan. 3, 1863.

* Fine Lincoln and Civil War item.

500. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. N. S. on card, Jan. 5, 1863. Asking the Secretary of War to see Capt. Watson, "who wishes to bring a new battery into the service."

501. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 1 page, 12mo, Washington, July 29, 1863, to Sec. of War.

* "I understand the Gov. of New Hampshire is anxious in regard to trouble about the draft, and desires that the 5th N. H. should be sent home on that account. The regiment is now here, going down the Potomac, somewhere, and contains, as I hear, only 115 men. . . ." The 5th N. H. volunteers were on their way to Lookout Point, Md. when they were stopped by the Secretary of War and sent to Concord, N. H., the draft rendezvous, where they remained for three months. The two sheets of the letter pasted together.

502. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. N. S., 1 page 12mo, no address, August 31, 1863 [to Gen. H. W. Halleck].

* "It is not improbable that retaliation for the recent great outrage at Lawrence, in Kansas, may extend to indiscriminate slaughter on the Missouri border, unless averted by very judicious action. I shall be obliged if the Gen.-in-chief can make any suggestions to Gen. Schofield on the subject." On August 21, a guerrilla leader, named Quantrell, with 300 men attacked Lawrence, an undefended town, 40 miles in the interior, which had no reason to apprehend an attack. Nearly 200 inhabitants were murdered, 185 buildings, burned, and horrible atrocities committed.

503. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. N. S. on card, Sept. 18, 1863. "I personally know H. Littlefield to be a true and reliable man."

ORIGINAL MANUSCRIPT OF LINCOLN'S ADDRESS AT BALTIMORE, APRIL 18, 1864.

504. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Original Manuscript of the Address by Abraham Lincoln at the Opening of the Fair for the Benefit of the United States Sanitary Commission at Baltimore, April 18, 1864. 2 $\frac{2}{3}$ pages folio, with a printed title, mounted to folio, green levant morocco, gilt, gilt edges, in a half morocco slip case. 1864

* Referring to the duration of the war and the emancipation of slaves in Maryland, Lincoln writes: "But we can see the past, though we may not claim to have directed it; and seeing it, in this case, we feel more hopeful and confident for the future." The last portion of the speech is devoted to the Fort Pillow massacre of negro and white soldiers.

505. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). Two A. L. S., one page each 12mo, dated at Washington, July 25, 1864. With franked envelope, addressed and signed by Lincoln. Both mounted.

* The first letter is to Gov. Curtin of Pennsylvania: "Here-with is the manuscript letter for the gentleman who sent me a cane through your hands. For my life I cannot make out his name; and therefore I cut it from his letter and pasted it on, as you see. I suppose [you] will remember who he is, and I will thank you to forward him the letter. . . ." The second letter is the above mentioned enclosure, thanking the donor for the cane, and with the Signature "Wm. O. Snyder" pasted at the head.

The above mentioned cane appears under the heading of Lincoln relies, in this catalogue.

506. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). D. S., 1 page folio, March 14, 1865, appointing William E. Chandler, Solicitor and Naval Judge Advocate General.

507. LINCOLN (ABRAHAM). A. L. S., 2 pp. 4to, City Point, April 6, 12. M. 1865, to Lieut. Gen'l Grant. Mounted and bound in green levant morocco, gilt, gilt edges, by Hyman Zuker.

* FINE LETTER, WRITTEN EIGHT DAYS BEFORE LINCOLN WAS ASSASSINATED. It begins: "Secretary Seward was thrown from his carriage yesterday and seriously injured. This with other matters will take me to Washington soon". Secretary Seward was still confined to his bed as a result of this injury when L. T. Powell, on the night of the assassination, rushed into his chamber and severely wounded him.

On the 4th of April, during Lincoln's visit to Richmond, Judge John A. Campbell, rebel Assistant Secretary of War, urged Mr. Lincoln to allow the Virginia Legislature to meet. The President thought he saw an opportunity for immediate military benefit, if the Legislature would at once withdraw the Virginia troops from the Confederate army, and on April 6th wrote to Gen. Weitzel, then commanding at Richmond, to allow the Legislature to meet. On the same day he wrote this letter to Gen. Grant, saying: "Judge Campbell. . . . called on me, and made such representations as induced me to put in his hands an informal paper repeating the propositions in my letter of instructions to Mr. Seward, which you remember, and adding 'that if the war be now further persisted in by the rebels, confiscated property shall at least bear the additional cost, and that confiscation shall be remitted to the people of any State which will now promptly and in good faith withdraw its troops and other support from the resistance to the Government.' Judge Campbell thought it not impossible that the rebel legislature of Virginia would do the latter, if permitted, and accordingly I addressed a private letter to General Weitzel, with permission for Judge Campbell to see it, telling him (General W.) that if they attempt this to permit and protect them, unless they attempt something hostile to the United States. . . . I do not think it very probable that anything will come of this, but I have thought best to notify you, so that if you should see signs you may understand them".

Early and Original Photographs of Lincoln.

773. EARLY AMBROTYPE OF LINCOLN showing him without a beard; almost full-face, dressed in evening clothes and seated in a chair. About 4 x 5½ inches; in a black frame, with gilt inside border. The date of this likeness is 1860, about the time of his first nomination for the presidency.

* This photograph was given by Lincoln to J. Henry Brown, who had been commissioned to paint a miniature. It was reproduced in Miss Tarbell's Life of Lincoln, and it is perhaps the most satisfactory picture we have of him as he appeared in 1860.

(See Illustration.)

774. DAGUERREOTYPE PORTRAIT of Lincoln, smooth shaven, showing the face in part profile to the left. Dressed in evening clothes, with wide turned-down collar. In a stamped leather case, with a gilt metal border. About 4 by 5 inches (two small defects on the face and neck).

* Probably taken in 1860.

775. DAGUERREOTYPE Portrait of Lincoln, almost full face, without beard; dressed in evening suit, with wide collar. Probably taken in 1860. Size 2 by 2½ inches; enclosed in a stamped leather case.

776. AMBROTYPE PORTRAIT of Lincoln showing left profile; without beard, in evening dress. In a gilt frame about 3 by 4 inches. Probably taken in 1860.

777. NEGATIVE of a photograph of Lincoln, seated, profile of left side, to the waist. 3½ x 4 inches. In a leather case.

778. FERROTYPE PORTRAIT of Lincoln. Small oval portrait in a gilt frame shaped like a brooch; with a pin on the back. Probably made for the campaign of 1860.

779. FERROTYPE PORTRAITS of Lincoln and Hamlin enclosed in a circular frame shaped like a coin. Gilded; and with the date 1860. Used during Lincoln's first campaign for the Presidency: pierced with a hole at the top.

780. FERROTYPE PORTRAITS of Lincoln and Johnson enclosed in a thin metal circular frame, gilded and about an inch in diameter. Pierced with a hole at the top and made for use in Lincoln's second campaign for the Presidency. The portrait of Lincoln appears to have been taken from a painting.

781. MOURNING BROOCH of small size, containing a photograph of Lincoln surrounded by a six-pointed star of jet, apparently mounted and backed with gold.

Lock of Hair in a Gold Case, Sleeve Button worn when Shot, Ink Stand used at Springfield, Office Chair, and Cane.

LOCK OF LINCOLN'S HAIR.

825. LOCK OF HAIR cut from Lincoln's head after he was shot. Enclosed in a 14 carat gold case, with a bevelled glass top. Size of box, $3 \times 1\frac{1}{2} \times \frac{3}{4}$ inches.

* On the back is engraved: "The enclosed lock of hair given to Dr. Charles S. F. Taft, one of the attending surgeons, April 15, 1865, was bought from his son Charles C. Taft, by William H. Lambert, March 11, 1908." Dr. Taft was with the President when he expired, and his note-book, with full particulars of that period, appears in this catalogue.

During the last two decades preceding his death on Saturday morning, June 1, 1912, I occasionally had an opportunity of adding some acceptable Lincoln items to Major Lambert's large collection, but the greatest service of this character in his judgment was acquiring for him, at a cost of six hundred dollars, the large blood-stained lock of hair cut from the President's head when the surgeon was examining the wound made by the assassin's bullet. It was given to Doctor Taft, an army surgeon, among the first to reach the victim, and who was assisting the chief surgeon in charge. Taft's son offered the precious relic to me and I secured it for the Major, who deemed it his most precious Lincoln treasure, for locks of his hair are more difficult to obtain than those of Washington. It is preserved in a handsome substantial gold box, with an appropriate inscription.—General James Grant Wilson in his paper on "William Harrison Lambert" in No. 4 of the Publications of the Lincoln Fellowship of New York, 1912.

The correspondence in regard to this and other relics acquired from the son of Dr. Taft, is in the Lambert collection. See No. 936.

LOCK OF LINCOLN'S HAIR.
(See No. 825.)

CUFF BUTTON WORN ON NIGHT
HE WAS SHOT.
(See No. 826.)

INKWELL USED IN HIS SPRINGFIELD OFFICE. (See No. 827.)

SLEEVE BUTTON.

826. SLEEVE BUTTON WORN BY PRESIDENT LINCOLN AT FORD'S THEATRE the night of his Assassination. It was broken by the surgeon in his hurry to reach the President's pulse. In two parts; the front, bearing a letter "L" on dark enamel, having been forced off. The back is of gold, with the two fasteners common at that period. In a sterling silver box, with plate glass cover.

* On the back is engraved the following inscription:—"Enclosed sleeve-button worn by President Lincoln April 14, 1865, was given by Mrs. Lincoln to Dr. Taft, an attending surgeon who had removed it in search for wound. Bought from his son C. C. Taft by W. H. Lambert, March, 11, 1908." In the Lambert collection there is correspondence with Mr. Taft in regard to this and other relics.

(See Illustration.)

INKSTAND.

827. INKSTAND USED BY LINCOLN for many years in his office in Springfield, and which appeared as No. 113 in the Catalogue of the Lincoln Memorial Collection.

* This inkstand was in daily use and shows the results of wear. It is of earthenware and originally had a series of decorations in gilt on the sides; most of which has disappeared. It is $2\frac{1}{2}$ inches in height and $4\frac{3}{4}$ in diameter.

Until 1887 it remained in the possession of Lincoln's law partner, W. H. Herndon, and an A. L. S. from him accompanies it. In another lot in the Lambert collection is a sworn statement by Herndon in regard to this and other relics.

The letter reads in part: "The inkstand numbered 113 in your catalogue of the Lincoln Memorial Collection was the property of Abraham Lincoln and was kept in his office for years, and out of which he wrote 'the house divided against itself' speech which caused much discussion. . . . I have had the inkstand in my possession since 1860. I know it to be as represented herein: it is true and genuine." There is also an inscription by Herndon on a piece of paper pasted on the bottom.

(See Illustration.)

OFFICE CHAIR.

828. CHAIR used by Lincoln in his Office in Springfield. Revolving arm-chair of rather crude design, and showing evidences of much use. A portrait of Lincoln has been set into the back at a comparatively recent date. This chair has been vouched for by Mr. Herndon as the chair used by Lincoln during his active partnership with him in Springfield. This was not a general office chair, but the one used by Lincoln habitually at his desk.

* With the above there is an autograph letter from Andrew Zane to Major Lambert, vouching for the genuineness of the chair and giving its history.

CANE.

829. CANE presented to Abraham Lincoln by William O. Snyder. The wood appears to be oak or some other heavy variety: it has a heavy silver top, with deep engraving, and a ferrule of brass and iron. It shows the effect of considerable usage.

*Two of the Lincoln letters in this sale, dated July 25, 1864, refer to the above cane.

OTHER RELICS.

830. LIGHTNING ROD. Fragment about 6 inches long taken from the first lightning-rod in Springfield, referred to by Lincoln in one of his debates.

*This lightning-rod was erected on the home of George Forquar, who had been a Whig. In answering his speech Lincoln said: "I would rather die now than, like the gentleman, change my politics and simultaneously with the change, receive an office worth $3,000 per year, and then have to erect a lightning-rod over my house to protect a guilty conscience from an offended God."

831. ASH TRAY made from tin taken from Lincoln's House in Springfield, put on in 1860 and removed in 1904; 3 nails taken from the same house. Accompanied by a slip of paper with printed description and an inscription: "Compliments of A. S. Edwards, Custodian Lincoln House."

832. WALLPAPER from Mr. Lincoln's bedroom in his house in Springfield, given to Major Lambert by Mrs. Edwards, 1908. 3 small pieces.

833. FRINGE FROM THE LINCOLN HEARSE. About four inches of Silver Fringe from the trimmings used on the hearse which bore President Lincoln's body in the funeral procession in Philadelphia, April 22, 1865.

834. RELIEF BUST PORTRAIT of Lincoln on an oval plaque of metal with a bronze finish; set into a walnut panel. Size $4\frac{1}{2}$ by $6\frac{1}{2}$ inches.

*Pasted on to the wood is the following inscription; "This is to certify that this wood was taken from the Lincoln Home in Springfield, Illinois, in the month of July, 1907, while the Home was being repaired. Walnut weatherboard, front of house. A. S. Edwards, Custodian Lincoln Home.

835. RELIEF PORTRAIT BUST of Lincoln on metal with a bronze finish, mounted on a walnut panel. Size 6 by 12 inches. On the back is a typewritten statement that the wood is from the Lincoln Home in Springfield.

836. SECTION OF WOOD from the tree planted by Abraham Lincoln at Springfield in 1856; taken down in 1907. Piece of the trunk 2 inches thick and about 18 inches in diameter; probably of the cottonwood family. Attached to it is a portrait of Lincoln framed in black, with a gilt plate beneath.

Surgeon Taft's Notebook of Events at Lincoln's Deathbed.

936. T AFT (CHARLES S., M. D.). Note-Book kept by Surgeon Taft in 1865. The first 17 pages of the book contain an account of the events following the shooting of President Lincoln, as witnessed by the writer; the medical notes of his attendance on the President and the post-mortem examination. These notes are signed, with the following statement "Done at Washington, D. C., this the Fifteenth day of April, in the year of our Lord, one thousand, eight hundred and sixty-five." Of the time of death, Taft writes: "The heart did not cease to beat until 22' 10" past 7; my hand was upon the President's heart and my eye upon the watch of the Surgeon-General who was standing by my side with his finger on the Carotid." The remainder of the book is made up of medical notes, addresses, and general observations. 12mo, leather; in a green morocco slip-case.

Whitman Manuscript.

1001. WHITMAN (WALT). ORIGINAL AUTOGRAPH MANUSCRIPT of Walt Whitman's Lecture, "Death of Abraham Lincoln (written Feb. 1879)." Written on many slips of paper and mounted on 17 leaves. Proof portraits of Lincoln and Whitman, that of Whitman being signed "Walt Whitman, June 9, '86." 4to, half green morocco, gilt top.

* Laid in is a ticket advertising Whitman's lecture at Madison Square Theatre, on which is a portrait of Lincoln. On the back is written: "This portrait of Abraham Lincoln is reproduced from a pen drawing I have made for the Century Company about 1886. Jacques Reich." The Whitman manuscript is evidently the last revision, and differs materially from the published reports of his lecture.

(See Illustration.)

Bost. [1892]

* EXTRA ILLUSTRATED by the insertion of over 300 portraits, facsimiles, maps and illustrations, of which about 60 are proofs on India or Japan paper. Among the India proofs are two different portraits by Charles B. Hall, proofs before letters and signed by the artist, only 50 copies of each having been printed. Other proofs portray Gen. McClellan, Alexander Hamilton, W. T. Sherman, Thomas Carlyle, John Marshall, Denis Hanks, Benedict Arnold, etc. There are over 20 proof portraits of Lincoln on India or Japan paper.

1005. WHITNEY (HENRY C., Author of "Life on the Circuit with Lincoln"). ORIGINAL UNPUBLISHED MANUSCRIPT. An Epitome of the Life and Character of Abraham Lincoln: Embracing an Analysis of his Character, Review of his Administration; and Critical Selections from his Writings and Speeches. Written on one side of about 800 leaves, with numerous corrections, insertions, and annotations. A few leaves either misplaced or missing-

* Apparently this work was never published, as we find no record of its appearance in print. It bears, in many places in the early portions of the MS., close resemblance to his "Life on the Circuit with Lincoln"; but it carries out in greater detail the political period of Lincoln's life, and dwells more fully on the great drama of the Civil War and Lincoln's conduct as its chief actor.

Death of Abraham Lincoln

(written Feb. 1879)

Though by no means proposing to resume the Secession War tonight, I ~~must~~ ^{would} briefly remind you my friends of the ~~present~~ ^{public} and ~~moral~~ conditions preceding that contest. For the war actually opened.

The hot passions of the South - the strange mixture at the North of ~~inertness~~ ^{inertness and} conscious power, the incendiarism of the Abolitionists - the ~~unparalleled~~ rascality & of the politicians unparalleled in any land, any ages ~~and~~ ^{to these} ~~and~~ ^{adding} the honesty ~~and~~ of the essential bulk of the people ~~everywhere~~ ^{everywhere} - yet with all the seething fury & contradiction of their natures more aroused & ~~bursting~~ than the ~~even~~ ^{waves} the Atlantic, in its wildest equinox -
